START OF HOP STRICT SECRET

Both Rogers and Post Denied Flight Was in Prospect Before Taking Off

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES Aug 16—The departure of Will Rogers with Wiley Post on the preliminary legs of Post's projected flight to Russia was guarded by the strictest secrecy

The Associated Press was informed in advance of the actual takeoff that Rogers noted screen comedian and writer would accompany his old time Oklahoma friend on the hazardous flight Rogers denied he planned to make the trip and Post said he knew nothing of it

Shortly in advance of the flight north Post, Mrs Post and Rogers left union air terminal Burbank heading north but landed in New Mexico for a brief fishing excursion

Returning here the three left for the north, but Mrs Post left her husband's powerful new low-winged monoplane at Seattle. Rogers continued on to Alaska, but even there he did not say whether he contemplated going on to Nome, where Wiley was to establish his base for the projected flight across Siberia into Moscow.

Rogers and Post both had aversions to being greeted by crowds at airports. Post, especially after the failure of his four attempts to span the country in the stratosphere this year, refused to discuss his plans.

Rogers, one of the top notch drawing cards in the motion picture industry, recently completed work on a movie and was free for several weeks. This gave credence to the report he was to [illegible] the [illegible] flight with Post, but he would not [illegible]

The holdup at Galion was staged about 10 o'clock last night at a service station operated by Frank Eberhart at the edge of the city where the Bucyrus road joins with the New Winchester road Mr Eberhart was preparing to close the station and had just drawn the blinds when he heard an automobile stop The bandits well dressed and armed with revolvers jumped out of their car and told the proprietor this is a stick up

When Eberhart turned as he was being backed up to the door of his station one of the men struck him behind the ear with his revolver knocking him to the floor He regained consciousness within a few seconds and hailed a passing automobile driven by James Casey of Galion who took him to the police station where he reported the holdup The bandits took a bag containing station receipts estimated between $25 and $30 but overlooked a billfold holding Eberhart's personal money

POST'S HOME TOWN STRICKEN WITH GRIEF

Friends Sent To Carry News of Tragedy to His Father and Mother

By The Associated Press

MAYSVILLE Okla Aug 16—Wiley Post's home town where he was always a home town boy and a friend of everybody was incoherent today with grief over the noted flier's death

Friends were dispatched to bear the news to his father and mother Mr and Mrs W F Post who live on a little farm two and a half miles out of this little town in the northern part of Garvin county There is no telephone at the modest residence

It is just too early to tell about things said William E Showen publisher of the Maysville News and one of Wiley's first backers in his aerial career I don't know whether burial will be here but certainly there will be memorial services for the most famous of Maysville's sons

Word of the death of Post and his friend Will Rogers spread rapidly through the town People gathered in little groups to talk of it, their faces mournful their voices hushed

This is the thing that Maysville has always been hoping against, said Showen

You know I was very close to Wiley but for that matter so was everyone else in town He was our big hero We liked him more because he was such a regular home town boy The more famous he got the friendlier he was There was nothing biggety about our Wiley

He came here with his folks along about 1921 when they bought their farm He was always tinkering with something and it wasn't long before he had the flying bug badly I don't know just how he got his early training but I do know that I sort of passed the hat and raised $50 to back Wiley in his first parachute jump here along about 1922

World Wide Fame Won in Will Rogers Career

By The Associated Press

Will Rogers was given the imposing name of William Penn Adair Rogers but everybody called him Will He was a cowboy humorist writer lecturer philosopher polo player world traveler and flyer but he went up in the air only as a passenger

He was born in Oolagah Indian Territory November 4 1879 but he called Claremore Okla his home town and was a legal resident of Oklahoma although he spent most of his time at his ranch between Beverly Hills and Santa Monica California

He had Indian blood in his veins and was proud of it. One of his best wisecracks was based upon this ancestry as he said that his ancestors did not come over on the Mayflower but they met the boat

His education came he said by easy stages I studied the fourth reader for ten years he told an interviewer but he was a kidder on and off the stage and many of his boasts of being ignorant could be taken with a grain of salt

After he left the fourth reader behind him he went through the Willow Hassell school at Neosho Mo and Kemper Military Academy at Booneville and if he did not

Post Mounted to Pinnacle Among Greatest of Fliers

By The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY Aug 16—From a modest farm near Maysville Okla Wiley Post rose to become one of the world's greatest fliers—not satisfied with making the fastest time around the globe but pushing on to new achievement in the stratosphere

Post had early ambitions to be come an airplane pilot and these were not stopped by an accident in a machine shop several years ago which cost him the sight of one eye

With Burrell Tibbs and Dorsey Askew as his instructors he learned to fly and joined them as a parachute jumper in their flying circus

After three years of barnstorming he settled down to become the personal pilot of F C Hall wealthy independent oil operator who later became his backer in the flights that brought Post and the Winnie Mae plane world fame

In 1931 Post set out alone from Floyd Bennett field New York bent on breaking that record without the help of a navigator Less than nine days later in just 186 hours and 49½ minutes he had flown around the earth and landed again at New York

Post was born at Grand Saline Texas The aviation bug first bit him in 1919 while he was a rig[illegible] helper in the Oklahoma oil fields

His original investment in aviation was $25 which he took from the lean purse of a barnstorming

Marion Man Finds Firearm History Interesting Hobby

[illegible] Below is one of a series of articles written by [illegible] of the Marion Hobby [illegible] in connection with the Mardi [illegible] and Homecoming [illegible] the club will sponsor [illegible]. The articles will appear from time to time preceding the show.

[illegible] are the hobby of E. F. [illegible] East Church street, [illegible] active members of the club at its bi-weekly [illegible] in its plans for the Homecoming week next [illegible].

[illegible] said recently, "Collecting and studying firearms is one of the most interesting and absorbing hobbies a man or woman can indulge in."

The following article on "Six Centuries of Firearm Development" was prepared by Mr. [illegible].

"Roger Friar Schwartz is credited for the invention of gunpowder three hundred years before the Pilgrim fathers landed on Plymouth Rock, there is evidence that the Chinese knew about the use of gun powder centuries before.

"Cannons were made to use the powder and from the cannon was developed the hand firearms. Arrows fired from bamboo tubes were perhaps the first form. The second stage was when loose powder was put in metal tubes and fired to eject a projectile. These crude weapons were far less effective than the long bows in use at that time. It is not difficult to picture hearing the 'lucky fellow his gun' being told to 'get a bow and arrow' much in the same manner the motorist of 30 years ago was advised to 'get a horse'.

"The earliest known examples of mid-fourteenth century are roughly stocked with straight wood stocks and had a touch hole and priming depression on the upper surface.

"The fifteenth century marks the period of development in firearms. By 1425 bullets could penetrate armor. Lead bullets were used but the powder was so weak that it was necessary to have a long tube to complete combustion and add force to the projectile. The match lock was invented late in this century and rifling in 1495.

"About 1509 the wheel lock was invented, the true flintlock was introduced about 1560 and was universally adopted and maintained its supremacy for nearly three centuries and is used to this day in some countries.

"The pill-lock was used late in the eighteenth century and was the first step in the development of the percussion type of primer shortly afterward.

"During the nineteenth century many different kinds of breech loading arms were tried out. Some used paper cartridges, linen cartridges and later rim fire, pin fire, center fire and other types.

"It has taken more than six centuries to develop the pistols, rifles and guns to the fine state of perfection we are accustomed to at this time. The skill of the artificer of many of these old weapons is well recorded in the beauty of design and proportion. Many are beautifully carved and some are inlaid with ivory and silver."

PASSING THE PAPRIKA

No two women could say as much in an hour's conversation as is expressed in that silent look of soul communion which passes between two men about to take a drink.

There is nothing really new in the "new morality." It is the same sort that was in vogue away back in the carefree days, when our ancestors lived in trees. Yet every now and then some popular exponent of sex psychology comes along and springs it as a bright, original discovery.

At sixteen a girl's ideal man is one who looks like a collar advertisement; later, it is one who looks like an advertisement for fifty cent cigars, vintage wine and three A's in Bradstreet's.

As long as they speak to each other, a man feels sure that the two women in his life are perfectly en rapport—and never suspects that either of them would cheerfully feed the other ground glass.

Woman is born with a naturally curly imagination just as often as she is born with naturally curly hair; and she is as ready to change the color of one of them as of the other, in order to please the current man.

No man believes in miracles nowadays. But every one of them still clings to the sweet hallucination that he will some day find a woman with enough brains to understand him—and enough stupidity to let him do all her thinking.

Funny, but it costs more for a woman to dress so that she will look as though she had on next-to-nothing, than it cost in the good old days when she wore enough clothes to sink her if she fell in the water.

Whether love is "the greatest thing in the world" or not, it will always make the most interesting reading.

The young man who regards marriage as a joke has a sufficiently keen sense of humor to carry him through all the vicissitudes that will follow his wedding-day.

No girl could possibly be as bored as a brand new debutante tries to look.

A PERSONAL MESSAGE TO MY FRIENDS

I MEET a lot of you around town "after hours" whom I never see during business. Maybe that's because I don't talk shop enough, but I believe actions speak louder than words. Whether it's a new tire . . . a grease or battery job . . . a tire repair . . . or some accessory . . . I think you'll say we give the best value in town. Most everybody else does.

11-Foot Swiss Alpenhorn In Hobby Show Display

Few Marion residents have ever seen a Swiss alpenhorn but after the Marion Hobby and Homecoming week next week every resident and visitor who has been uptown will be a little more familiar with the instrument.

Yesterday the Marion Hobby club in charge of displays received word from Leopold Felchlin of 225 Silver street that he was willing to place on display an alpenhorn which was sent him from Switzerland.

The alpenhorn which is in Mr Felchlin's possession measures 11 feet in length made of natural wood with a cup-shaped mouth piece.

For centuries such instruments have been used in the Swiss Alps not only as a musical instrument but also for the purposing of signaling.

The alpenhorn is one of many unusual and interesting articles which will be placed on display in Marion's uptown store windows next week.

Every Marion resident has been invited to participate in making the displays even better than those of last year. Those desiring to exhibit some antique family heirloom or hobby collection during the week have been asked to call Clarence Hart at 2103 or to get in touch directly with the merchant in whose window they wish their contribution to be displayed.

All displays must be in place Monday afternoon club officers have ruled. To facilitate window trimming exhibitors have been asked to have their entries at the stores Saturday morning if possible.

Dearth of Moisture in Corn Growing Areas Also Affects Quotations

BEAUTY QUEEN AWAITS CROWN

Prospect Celebrants To Honor Prize Winner at Ceremonies Tonight.

Special to The Star

PROSPECT, Aug 15—Miss Irma Louire Lodwig will be crowned queen of the centennial festivities in ceremonies scheduled for tonight on the square in the business district.

Announcement of the selection of the queen and her attendants was made last night following the pageant depicting the story of Prospect through the last century.

Miss Carroll Dix won second honors and was chosen Miss Prospect. Miss Betty Griffith was accorded the honor of being Miss Ohio and Misses Catherine Maddow and Margaret Stine were named the queen's attendants. Selections were made in a popularity contest conducted in connection with the centennial festivities. The queen and her party will occupy places of honor on a float in the parade which will feature tonight's festivities.

An audience estimated at 4,000 witnessed the pageant, "Forging of the Village." A large cast of town folks portrayed the history of the founding of the village by Christian Gast and other pioneers and the narrative was related by Mrs Edwin Adams.

The trek of the Gast family from their home in Pennsylvania to Prospect in covered wagons was followed by the establishing of the community, the church, school and social activities, the departure of the Indians and the stirring days of the Civil war. An orchestra directed by Paul Gast provided a musical setting for the colorful story.

The picnic schedule this afternoon in the Community park includes games and contests and an old timers' baseball game as the final event. "Uncle Ezra" of radio station WBNS, Columbus and his troupe of entertainers were to perform prior to the crowning of the queen this evening.

The centennial parade was to get under way at 6:30 p. m. and be repeated at 10 p. m. The committee in charge includes W. H. Herr, W. E. Hess, D. P. Hard and Harry Beavers.

Prizes will be awarded the following: prettiest float, best decorated automobile, most unique idea in the parade, best idea on advertising and the best clown.

The Stars Say--

For Saturday Aug 17

THE ASTRAL influences for this day assist in the removal or modifying of a depressing and frustrating state of affairs making room for some industrious work in attacking obstacles and impediments This opens the doorway for a new venture undertaking or an opportunity that may result in an expansion or stabilization of the fortunes But adhere to the tried and true and do not take chances in speculative enterprises The mind will be keen to right openings

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year in which certain depressing conditions may be lifted or modified followed by opportunity for new efforts in the way of stabilizing the fortunes An entirely new plan may be necessary but the mind will be found quite able to grasp the proper means and measures

A child born on this day may be gifted with an original and keen mind and may be ingenious and inspired It should be grounded in principles of thrift however

Thumbs Down.

Ohio voters in Tuesday's primary turned thumbs down on bond issues, with few exceptions. They showed plainly an unwillingness to assume additional obligations, even when a premium was offered in the form of a federal grant.

Yet, the federal government continues to finance its operations with borrowed money. What would happen if popular approval were required for federal bond issues? Is there a distinction between federal and municipal borrowing?

The same reasoning applies in both cases. Given a chance to express themselves, voters show they are fearful of the consequences of borrowing additionally from the future for the present. Back in the boom days when the future offered nothing but expansion, bond issues rarely lost. Now they rarely win.

For Four Years.

School teachers throughout the state know the next few years are going to be important ones in the further development of Ohio's educational system. The most ambitious public school program in the state's history was authorized during the legislature's latest session.

Because a period of uncertainty is ahead, unusual interest is attached to Gov. Davey's appointment of E. L. Bowsher to succeed Dr. B. O. Skinner as state director of education. Mr. Bowsher is taking a position which carries real importance with it, both politically and educationally.

Politically, it is one of the juiciest plums at a governor's disposal. A director of education serves for four years at $6,500 a year. Mr. Bowsher still will be director of education four years from now, regardless of Gov. Davey's political fortunes in the meantime.

Educationally, the office, as its name implies, entails the responsibility of directing Ohio's huge and costly public school system. At this time, particularly, that responsibility will be heavy, due to the beginning of the school foundation program.

Under the program, the directors of education has wide discretionary powers. Unavoidably, some persons believe Mr. Bowsher's appointment may have been dictated by unworthy motives in the governor's office. That point must remain indeterminate. As Dr. Skinner discontinues his labors and Mr. Bowsher begins his, the state can only hope the new director will be as capable as the old one.

With Deepest Apologies.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, usually described as the philosopher of President Roosevelt's cabinet, is a likable man. Among the charges entered against him there is no mention of insincerity.

It is Secretary Wallace's fate in these troublous times to be in charge of the effort to do something for the relief of agriculture, certainly one of the most difficult assignments of all. He has been praised, cursed, ridiculed and lauded but he seems able to turn off the blows and accept the handshakes with admirable calm.

Therefore, it is with an apologetic feeling that puzzlement over one of Mr. Wallace's recent statements is expressed. It scarcely seems worthwhile to go into the matter, because the secretary seems so certain he is on the right track.

To get down to facts, Secretary Wallace said the other day if hogs hadn't been slaughtered in 1933 under AAA auspices the price of pork now would be higher than it actually is. That would seem to indicate the farmer would be getting more for pork if AAA hadn't intervened in his behalf.

In the same statement, however, Mr. Wallace claimed the AAA slaughter was really a negligible factor in the pork market because so few hogs were affected. That seems to put him in the position of saying the slaughter of hogs had nothing to do with the present price of pork, but that the present price of pork would be higher if the hogs hadn't been slaughtered.

These are, undoubtedly, misunderstandings. Yet, they are typical of the ease with which so much of the complex theory of the new deal is misunderstood. Insiders, presumably, know exactly what's what. But for outsiders it's extremely difficult even to know what's intended to be what. Apparently, the whole thing is too intricate to be grasped by ordinary intelligences.

The Untouchables.

In much of the comment on the tax measure pending in congress, an interesting, but certainly a debatable assumption, is the key to the usual conclusion, which is to the effect that small and middle-sized taxpayers are recognizing the necessity for heavier taxation on themselves. What proof is there for believing that is true?

The answer is, "very little, if any." The assumption originates in the minds of men who reason, logically, that the middle-class taxpayer, because his kind is so numerous, should recognize his obligation to support the government with heavier taxes to prevent financial collapse. However, the middle-class taxpayer is no more likely to agree with such logical reasoning than the demagogic politician who pretends financial collapse can be averted by confiscatory taxes on concentrated wealth.

The fact of the matter is, the politician's attitude is determined by what he believes to be the attitude of the majority of his constituents, i. e., the middle-class taxpayers. They are the untouchables, not because he wills them to be so but because they will him to consider them as such. Commentators who say the United States is prevented from adopting a sound tax program by cowardly politicians might do well to recognize honestly the reasons for political cowardice.

The middle-class taxpayer, whose earnings according to tax experts, must be touched more heavily before the government can begin to balance its budget, is reluctant to admit his importance in the financial scheme of things. In his heart, he may see things as they are. Extremely, he is more inclined to speak of things as he wishes they could be—a country in which government could collect its taxes always from the other fellow. There is much spade work to be done before the taxmakers can expect the middle-class taxpayer to accept his burden without planning simultaneously to take out his spite on the politician who placed it on his shoulders.

Something Wrong.

President William Green's predictions that members of the American Federation of Labor in cities throughout the country would follow the example of New York members and strike in protest against work relief wages may turn out only half correct.

The New York strike, at last reports, was doing very badly. Only a fraction of the A. F. of L. members and sympathizers supposed to be on strike actually were staying away from their jobs. In fact, Gen. Johnson, who now is works progress administrator for New York, was telling all interested parties the strike had ended.

The facts and theories of the situation do not agree. There is something wrong when President Green says one thing and his followers do another thing. If New York isn't too far away for Ohio to detect a fly in the ointment, the trouble was that Mr. Green's followers finally figured out that $93.50 a month, which is what the government was willing to pay them, is more than $60 a month, which is what they had been getting. So they went back to their jobs, carelessly disregarding the theory that it was dangerous to work for less than prevailing wage rates for a greater number of hours in order to earn more money.

If President Green's prediction that workers in other cities would follow the example of the New York brethren is correct, there may never be any more WPA strikes at all.

Restored.

The snap is gone from the story of Samuel Insull First, he failed to be a hero when the crisis came. Then, under the stern scrutiny of the law he was a dismal flop as a villain, despite the best efforts of some of the government's most capable lawyers to make him dastardly.

Mr. Insull these days is just an old gentleman who rose from rags to riches in the Horatio Alger tradition and then was unfortunate enough to get squeezed like hundreds of other financiers who had more vision than was good for them under the circumstances.

Even so, there aren't many Americans able to muster up any real tears for the vicissitudes of finance which left Mr. Insull in the sloughs of despondency—and surely there must be a few less than there were at the beginning of the week.

On Aug. 7, Samuel Insull, who has been described so many times as "broken and penniless," was restored as a pensioner of the four keystone companies in his collapsed utilities empire. The amount wasn't disclosed, but the thought of poor Mr. Insull fighting with the wolf for a place on the doorstep may be dismissed now.

Martin and Osa Johnson are enroute to Borneo wilds where they will remain for two years in the heart of the fiercest jungles and among the head hunters. Before their departure they spent weeks assisting in the decoration of African Hall, which will house many of their trophies, at the Museum of Natural History. On this safari their photographic ambitions are to film snakes that fly and fish that climb trees. Incidentally, this may be the Johnson's last expedition. They are eager to settle down to the peace of a child's west farm after their exciting stretches in the world's lost places.

One wonders why most seekers of adventure prefer to climax their years of thrills with solitude. Lawrence of Arabia, in his Sussex seclusion after probably the most romantic career of modern times, is typical. A checkup of the Explorer's club shows that nearly all of the international wanderers who have quit the trails now live in isolated spots.

When James Gordon Bennett was running the New York Herald, he had an inviolable rule for his Monday morning front page. It must feature a dog story. Once it was ignored and there was a new managing editor three hours after Bennett saw the mutation in Paris. The dog feature, of course, touched off a field day for theatrical press agents. All the stage stars were exploited as having dogs that showed every sort of accomplishment from barking in French to spanking all food save caviar. Bennett never objected to the impossibility of the tales. He did not care so long as the dog was the hero although he was a stickler for accuracy in other news.

Notched in a block on the west side of Third avenue near 51st street in an arcade, solid with antique shops and bearing the name Arden Court. While much of the stuff is Russian, sold by once rich refugees, there are several early American displays. The stores are cubicles of about 8 by 10 feet and owners sit out front during the dull trading interludes in an exchange of friendly palaver. It is open until midnight.

Another story of George S. Kaufman's backadaisical reaction to enthusiasm comes from Hollywood. At a luncheon table a returning hunter was telling of his trip. "When we got up," he gurgled, "the entire lake was completely covered with ducks." Kaufman, mildly, "Just one layer?"

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Sunday, Aug. 16, 1925.

Evidence of increasing interest in Sunday afternoon community concerts being given at Chautauqua pavilion in Garfield park was seen when a audience of 1,000 assembled to hear a program given by Judge L. B. McNeal's band.

Marion's two Ohio National Guard units, Company D and Howitzer company, returned from 13 days' training at Camp Perry. Howitzer company had been cited as one of the three best military companies in military maneuvers at camp and several members of the outfit were also cited for military efficiency.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Steffen of Summit street were week-end visitors at Russell Point.

Mrs. Silva Lennon and daughter Elwynna, of East Center street, returned from a two-weeks' vacation as guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bindley at their cottage at Topinabee, Mullet Lake, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Stauffer of Chestnut street and their nephew, Samuel Moore of Ashland, and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Fornkel and daughter Donna, of Chestnut street returned from a two-weeks' stay at Morrison lake, Michigan.

Dr. George T. Harding, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Heber Votaw returned from Bellefontaine, where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Denman.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Monday, Aug. 16, 1915.

Officials in Washington announced that the United States, under existing rules, had no authority to interfere with the spreading of pro-German or pro-Ally propaganda in this country.

The English liner, Highland Corrie, docked at Tilbury, England, after a narrow escape from destruction by a German submarine at the mouth of the Thames river. The vessel was ordered to stop when it encountered the U-boat but Capt. P. M. Jacobs responded by steering his ship in a zig-zag course at full speed to get away. The submarine fired a torpedo but missed.

Gov. Willis appointed Dr. A. F. Linscott of Marion as one of 20 delegates from Ohio to the Panama-Pacific International dental congress in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hochstetter returned from a two-weeks' stay at Lakeside.

Miss Ellen Lucille Metzger and Miss Dorothy Hume left for a week's outing at the cottage of Frank A. Huber and family at Huronia Beach, Mich.

Miss Tinae Pearle Forsythe and Harry C. Huston, both of Marion, were united in marriage at St. Paul's Episcopal church by the rector, Rev. A. H. Roth.

Behind The News In

Washington And Wall Street

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—The fastest backward political flip-flop on record, bar none, was that of President Roosevelt's tax leaders in the senate. One day they were for the LaFollette bill to soak everybody and the next they voted for the opposite scheme, which would hardly dampen anyone.

The charge is being made that Mr. Roosevelt engineered the switch. Also that the moans and groans of Senators Borah and Norris caused the LaFollette plan to be dropped. These suspicions are plausible. There may be something in them. But what actually happened was this:

A gentleman who happened to be peeking in the window at the secret session of the finance committee noticed that the LaFolette plan was approved by a suspiciously informal method. Senators did not vote officially as they usually do, but merely raised their hands in approval or disapproval, thus leaving no record of how they voted.

Bushes

But far more amazing was the fact that the chairman counted nineteen hands voting, whereas the window peeker could plainly see only about a dozen senators were present and none of them voted with both hands.

The explanation apparently is that Chairman Pat Harrison had proxies for several absent hands in his pocket, and he counted them. The absentees authorized Mr. Harrison to vote them, but when they read in the newspapers what had been done they began to get cold feet. Especially chilling was the editorial comment.

Two or three of them complained in effect, that, gosh, it was all right to pull a little strategy like that to keep Senator LaFollette quiet, but, after all, the LaFollette plan was terrible and they would not like to get caught voting for it, even with absent hands.

Therefore it was arranged that new deal's faithful friend, Senator Barkley, who also may have heard from the White House, would move a reconsideration. Four senators conveniently absented themselves, permitting LaFollette to lose by the narrow margin of 8 to 7. On this occasion the vote was legitimately recorded by names, not hands, and irretrievably announced.

The moral, dear children is that machine work is always done by hand in the senate. Also, you may safely assume that a bird in the senatorial hand might as well still be in the bushes.

Friendly Tip

Scouts for the senate lobby investigators heard about 10 days ago that the elusive Howard Hopson was arranging to be found by the house investigators, in preference to those of the senate.

The scouts were tipped by someone inside the utility world that the missing utility man realized that he could not remain missing forever, that he would not mind being discovered by the house committee, if he could only be saved from the senate.

Whether such an arrangement was made would be difficult to prove, but it is more than a good guess that the first information regarding Hopson's whereabouts did not come from his enemies.

Captive

A New York business man was held prisoner in the department of agriculture for three and a half hours the other day. He strolled in on business and was mistaken by an attendant for a member of the crop reporting board.

Ushered into the board room, he discovered the board arriving at a final figure on the important cotton estimates. Once he was in, the door was locked behind him. He objected, saying he had an engagement with a government official, but to no avail. He was told that no one would be permitted to leave that room for any purpose until the cotton estimates were announced. It was then 11:30 a. m. He waited until 3 p. m., missing lunch as well as the appointment.

Some years back a clerk at the crop board got rich flashing crop reports to the outside by making

Preparations

Gen. Johnson's trouble with striking relief workers was no surprise to him. The new deal authorities knew weeks ago that it was coming and did everything they could to prevent it.

Mr. Roosevelt personally made the decision to fight the strike. His liaison man with Johnson was Assistant Labor Secretary McGrady. Notes

Congressmen have evaded every effort to prevent them from keeping non-working relatives on their pay rolls, but Representative Mitchell of Tennessee believes he has found a way. He is planning to put a petition for his anti-nepotism bill on the speaker's desk next year before election. If members do not sign up, the voters will know. Mitchell has found one family with six members on the federal pay roll for a total of $23,000 a year.

President Roosevelt was surprised to learn the other day from a member of congress that the senate and house office buildings are air-cooled only in spots. The President has never been in them.

A new photographer, stationed at the White House, is named Woodrow Wilson. Two White House policemen are Henry Ford and Jack Dempsey, respectively.

Signs have been erected in the street alongside the White House executive offices reading, "Don't blow your horn." They were put up the day after the Rhode Island election.

BY LOUIS SCHNEIDER

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 — The money future of Italy is no longer a secret. International bankers say inflation in that country is certain. This is verified by the recent increase of the Bank of Italy's discount rate. The serious strain on its financial structure is due to huge expenditures for military purposes.

But Italy itself is not downhearted—not by a long shot. Informed quarters says the going is grand for Il Duce. He has sold the Italians a bill of goods and they are more than pleased. Even pacifists are with him.

Work

Premier Mussolini remained as long as he did because he kept the people working. He converted swamps into industrial and home centers. He built roads and what not. It took more than 10 years to get it done. Now that almost everything has been completed there seems nothing else to do. Unemployment rolls grew large. He had to get them active and working. Ethiopia was the solution—so informed sources say.

"There is a promised land"—is the belief of all the nation. "There one will find work and plenty." Italy's bankers and industrialists agree. Vast fields must be rebuilt and modernized. For this workmen—unemployed for a long time—are signing long term contracts to work in Eritrea and Somaliland. Laborers—skilled and unskilled—are flocking to get work in the new government projects already laid out for Ethiopia. This accounts for Italy's sharp decline in unemployment figures. Not work in Italy but work in Africa. "But what matter where as long as it is work?" said an Italian banker who recently arrived from across the seas.

Doubt

Senator Nye's statement that should President Roosevelt turn conservative and the Republicans fail to turn progressive it would result in a third national political party is accepted with a bag of laughs by informed quarters. They can't see it on a bet.

It can hardly be imagined that President Roosevelt will turn conservative since he still loves his brain trusters. Not only that—he is constantly pushed by threats from Father Coughlin and Huey Long. There is doubt whether the Republican party will turn pro-

the boss and he is regarded as ultra-conservative. "It will take a newcomer in the GOP to turn the tables." But a third party"—not a chance.

Lobbying

Informed New Yorkers are certain the Nye committee will not get its bill—to control trade in arms and ammunition—through congress. Members of the munitions committee are sore as pups about the delay. They urge it for this session or they insist it will be too late. They feel that if American munitions exports continue the United States may become involved in another foreign mess. Certain lawmakers say there isn't any reason why Americans shouldn't get a piece of the trade. "Haven't had any for years." Munition manufacturers are skillfully lobbying against the bill.

Compare

Statisticians are working on semi-annual comparisons of business improvement. When completed these charts will show an excellent picture—so far they do—of what took place during the first six months of this year. The most interesting thus far is furnished by the industrial and rail figures.

Figures already compiled on some 250 manufacturing corporations show an improvement of 6.5 per cent over the same period of last year. Railroad figures show a decline in income net of almost 7 per cent for 20 of the largest systems as compared with 1934. This accounts for recent activity of industrial shares while carrier issues remain in the background.

Wrong!

Bond dealers aren't a bit excited over the accusations of the securities exchange commission counsel Judge John J. Burns. His Insta dealers are "jumping the gun" when they offer bonds to clients before the issue is approved or goes through the regular 20-day period of gestation. The Judge has gone so far as to say that complaints have been filed.

But Italy itself is not downhearted—not by a long shot. Informed quarters says the going is grand for Il Duce. He has sold the Italians a bill of goods and they are more than pleased. Even pacifists are with him.

Dealers are laughing up their sleeves. They can't understand who would make a written complaint unless it is a dealer who lost a sale. The belief is that there isn't anything wrong in talking to a client about a pending bond offering. It's in that way that bonds can be sold. As as example, a salesman talks to his client and says that if the bonds are approved they will sell at such and such a price to yield so much. Would he want the issue if it comes through and how much? The client either likes it or not and to what tune. In that way dealers know for how many bonds they are to subscribe. "How else are we to know?"

"There's nothing wrong in discussing possible business with a client. There's nothing in the SEC rules and regulations to prevent any dealer discussing prospective issues with a client any more than there is in two clients discussing the matter between themselves." How about it, Judge?

THERE ARE ways of getting rich and ways of getting poor. John D. Rockefeller Jr. and his father know them both. Mr. Rockefeller Sr. got rich because he was "smarter" than his competitors, and then gave away four or five hundred million dollars to science, education, etc.

John D. Jr. has just sold seven million dollars' worth of shares in various Standard Oil companies and has given the proceeds to charitable and scientific institutions. An excellent example. He might need the money some day. "Share-the-wealth gentlemen" may decide to change it to "take," and then make them give you back.

Mr. Albright doubtless would prefer the "east Tennessee turkey" to a reply that might enlighten him. His address is Room 206, Empire Building, Knoxville, Tenn.

Refrigerators To Eskimos

Intelligent business men will be glad to know that Arthur Kudner, vice president of the very able firm of Erwin-Wasey, is starting an advertising business of his own.

Mr. Kudner combines the technical size and business ability of C. C. Meigs of Chicago, with the conception expression of Henry W. Beecher and the keen, restless mind of Machiavelli. When it comes to transferring business from somebody else's "line" to that of his client, Mr. Kudner is efficient.

Advertising was never more important than now. Progress comes when people buy, production when advertising is done intelligently.

Lady Astor on Birth Control

Lady Astor of Virginia and daughter British women that they could go to Parliament and be useful, is criticized by American friends on the assumption that she is violently in favor of birth control.

Lady Astor, who has a right to express an opinion, having introduced six infants before taking about birth control, says she favors "public supervision to prevent working class mothers, who endure horrible suffering when they have children too frequently, when they try to prevent them by operations."

That seems reasonable.

Up To U. S.?

Viscount Snowden, once chancellor of the British exchequer in Labor party, thinks the United States should prevent war between Ethiopia and Italy, but does not explain what business that is of ours.

It is the sort of war that Snowden's respected country has waged against the Boers when England desired the diamond mines and gold mines of South Africa. We wonder whether these Europeans, asking us to pull their Ethiopian chestnuts out of the fire, really believe that we are as stupidly idiotic as we were in the big war.

HAYES' CAUTION

The administration of President Hayes fell into a period of comparative quiet in the supreme court and he had but two appointments to make to the high bench. But he was cautious and careful in his choices.

A vacancy occurred when Justice David Davis resigned to enter politics. Hayes at first favored Benjamin H. Bristow but because opposition cautiously switched to John Marshall Harlan, who was confirmed and served for years in the position. William B. Hill of Georgia was Hayes' second appointment, named to succeed Justice Strong, who resigned. Judge Wood, Harlan was also from the South, as the Hayes administration favored conciliation.

WILL ROGERS AND WILEY POST DIE IN ALASKAN PLANE CRASH

"king of the arctic because of his 51 years of residence

Brower operates a trading post and whaling station at the settlement which is 11 miles from where Point Barrow juts out into the Arctic ocean

This was Post's second crash in Alaska On his first round-the-world flight his red monoplane Winnie Mae was damaged in a forced landing near Flat on the Yukon river in central Alaska.

Post was unhurt and succeeded in repairing his plane and continuing his flight after a delay of less than a day

Post had planned to continue his flight to Siberia after visiting Point Barrow and Nome Whether Rogers was going with him was not known Before leaving Fairbanks last night Rogers said he hadn't decided

Wanted To Winter There

Two days ago in Anchorage Rogers said he planned to spend the winter in Alaska with sourdoughs denned up in their cabins along the Yukon and Mackenzie rivers

Post said he had not determined his route after the Point Barrow flight but he made inquiries concerning airplane landing fields in western Alaska and Siberia

Post's plane was a new one built in Burbank Calif for the flight to Siberia It was a specially built model of low wing construction similar to the ship used by Col and Mrs Charles A Lindbergh on their flight to Japan in 1931 and across the Atalantic air routes in 1933

Flown to Seattle as a land plane the ship was fitted with pontoons here

Arrived There Aug 1

Post arrived here from the south on Aug 1 accompanied by Mrs Post who had planned to make a Siberian trip with her husband A San Francisco he had been delayed several days obtaining passport permission to enter Russia.

He said at that time he planned to go to Moscow after hunting tigers in Siberia. Ambassador Troyanovsky then at San Francisco said they would be warmly welcomed at Moscow

While here delayed for several days the Russian flier hopped from Moscow on their projected flight over the north pole to California and Post showed great interest in their flight He predicted that it would be successful although subsequently they were compelled to turn back and return to Russia

Rogers freed from his moving picture work for a time then flew north and joined them here on Aug 5 He left Los Angeles under an assumed name but his identity was soon discovered and he was welcomed here

On Test Flights

On the next day the two took test flights in Post's plane which had by then been equipped with pontoons and Rogers also found time for a polo workout with polo players here He was their guest that evening and told them among other things that he was going to get a polo team going on the Matanuska project as that was about the only thing the Democrats haven't done for the colony

That evening friends disclosed later Rogers kidded Mrs Post about the hunting and fishing they planned on isolated Alaskan lakes saying it was no place for a lady The kidding in which Post joined finally convinced Mrs Post not to make the trip

Consequently the next morning Aug 7 when the two hopped from the Renton airport of Lake Washington south of here Mrs Post was left behind She said the trip might be too strenuous

She remained here only a few days and then flew south in a private plane to San Francisco

Post and Rogers made a leisurely flight of eight hours 15 minutes that day to Juneau not stopping at Ketchikan although before leaving here Rogers had said he might have to get a fish dinner at Ketchikan Rain and low lying clouds lay along the route they traveled but they arrived safely at the territory's capital

Gov John W Troy of Alaska and Joe Crosson a hunting companion last year of Post's welcomed the two on their arrival at Juneau

They were the governor's guests that night at the territorial mansion The next day it was still raining and their flight which by now had become a vacation trip they said was delayed Rogers bought rubbers two raincoats and other equipment saying humorously with this weather I'll need lots of them

Within a few days they hopped again over the historic Klondike gold territory at Dawson, Y. T., and even there found themselves the objects of much attention. Miners and prospectors came miles to see them

Take Off Again

Within two days they took off again their destination unannounced as usual and they turned up at Aklavik N W T at the mouth of the Mackenzie river, on the Arctic

Rogers commented in one of his dispatches that the Eskimos there were thicker than rich men at a save the constitution convention He also found it cold It was 40 above zero. Their stay there was short

A flight back to interior Alaska to Fairbanks followed and then in a commercial plane they flew south to Anchorage and over to the Matanuska project.

Pioneering for spinach is different than pioneering for gold" said Rogers but his other comment was favorable I didn't see any mosquitos there" he said

They returned to Fairbanks where their plane had been serviced and then followed their tragic flight north to Point Barrow ending in disaster near their destination

Nation's Leaders Mourn Death of Famous Airmen

WASHINGTON Aug 16—The capital where Will Rogers was loved as few others of his time grieved today to hear of his death

Oh that is awful bad exclaimed Vice President Garner raising his hands on learning that his humorist friend and Wiley Post had crashed

Just two mighty good men have been lost to the world I can't talk about it Rogers was one of the best friends I had

Speaker Byrns incredulous at first, later said he could not find immediate words to express his sorrow

Patrick J Hurley secretary of war in the Hoover administration friend of Rogers since they were boys together in Oklahoma called him one of the cleanest finest characters I have ever known He was one of nature's noblemen

I knew Wiley Post well also He was a brilliant and intrepid flier

Mayor Frank S Shaw of Los Angeles here on business said

I was with Will only two weeks ago No words I could say now would completely express my sorrow

Oklahoma has lost its two greatest sons said Rep Will Rogers of that state He recalled the humorist's indorsement had helped put him in congress

Rep Boland of Pennsylvania said no one realized Rogers genius for judging current events better than members of congress

Speaker Byrns said he had a premonition that trouble would come to Will Rogers on the Alaskan flight

When I read he was going on that long trip he said I told my wife I wish Will Rogers wouldn't do that

I said he was liable to get killed

Sen McAdoo who knew Rogers as a fellow Californian said his loss will be felt by untold millions

After the first shock was past Speaker Byrns said

Will Rogers had the ear of the public as few in this country did Everybody read what he had to say in his quaint way His death is a real loss—and Post's is too

Sen Byrd brother of Rear Admiral Richard E Byrd knew both the victims well and was deeply distressed

Former Gov Pollard of Virginia who traveled with Rogers during the 1933 convention of the national governors conference also was much affected

Gov Herbert H Lehman at Albany said today that probably no men in America had more friends and admirers than Will Rogers and Wiley Post

Clyde Pangborn noted flyer said the death of Wiley Post and Will Rogers in an Alaskn plane crash today was the worst tragedy since the Knute Rockne crash from a public viewpoint

Pangborn who is planning to outdo Post's round the world flight record by a non stop aerial trip around the globe said he would try to attend the funeral of the two accident victims both his friends

Harold Perrin of London secretary of the Royal Aero club said Wiley Post was regarded by us as a marvelous flier and a tough fellow

His achievements have been a wonder of the world and have drawn our deepest admiration The Royal Aero club is deeply grieved to learn of the death of this marvelous pilot

HYDE PARK N Y Aug 16—Mr Roosevelt was informed of the death of the two distinguished men and friends shortly after his arrival here today from the White House for a brief visit home

I was shocked to hear of the tragedy which has taken Will Rogers and Wiley Post from us Will was an old friend of mine a humorist and philosopher beloved by all I had the pleasure of greeting Mr Post on his return from his round the world flight He leaves behind a splendid contributions to the science of aviation Both were outstanding americans and will be greatly missed

Rogers Pleads for Settlers in Last Message

Will Rogers whose humor often was employed as a plea for a worthy cause or an unfortunate people wrote his last daily newspaper message to picture the plight of American drouth stricken pioneers who were making new homes in Alaska Rogers visited the new settlement in Alaska yesterday and in his message for today he pointed to the urgent need for haste in construction of homes for the pioneers to protect them from the fast approaching winter

Rogers daily message has appeared in The Star for several years

There follows his story written for today

(Will Rogers Special)

FAIRBANKS Alas Aug 16—Visited our new emigrants Now this is not time to discuss whether it will succeed or whether it won't whether its a farming country or whether it is not and to enumerate the hundreds of mistakes and confusions and rows and arguments and management in the whole thing at home and here

As I see it there is but one problem now that they are here and that's to get em housed with in six or eight weeks

Things have been a terrible mess They are getting em straightened out but even now not fast enough There is about seven or eight hundred of em About 200 went back also about that many workmen sent from transient camps down home (not CCC) and just lately they are using about 150 Alaskan workmen paid regular wages but it's just a few weeks to snow now and they have to be out of the tents both workmen and settlers

Plenty food and always has been and will be They can always get that in but it's houses they need right now and Col Hunt in charge realizes it You know after all there is a lot of difference in pioneering for gold and poineering for spinach

Yours

Will Rogers.

UNCLE HAD PLANNED TO ACCOMPANY POST

Says He's Mighty Glad He Didn't Go When Told of Crash in Alaska.

By The Associated Press
DALLAS Texas Aug 16—S H Post an uncle of the famous flier Wiley Post who was killed in a plane crash in Alaska with Will Rogers said he had wanted to go on this trip with Wiley

I was anxious to go on this trip with him he said when advised of his nephew's death but I'm mighty glad I didn't now

Besides S H Post Wiley's brother L. Byron Post, a sister Mrs Irvin A Junelle and his grandmother Mrs C. C Post live here

Mrs Junelle screamed when informed of her brother's death by a newspaperman and the telephone receiver apparently dropped from her hand S H Post had heard of the death of the nephew and called for confirmation

Did the plane burn?" was almost his first question. He was told the bodies had been recovered and taken to Point Barrow.

"Oh, that's too bad; it's awful," he kept saying.

Post's brother could not be located immediately.

Rogers Faithful To Shibboleth of Theater Circles

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK Aug 16—How Will Rogers killed with Wiley Post in an airplane crash once flew across the continent to save the show in which his close friend Fred Stone was scheduled to star was recalled here today

Stone as enthusiastic about flying as Rogers was injured in a plane crash at Groton Conn in the summer of 1928

Rogers cancelled motion picture and personal appearance contracts and flew to New York from California to take Stone's place in a musical show 'Three Cheers' being rehearsed for a fall Broadway opening

The show went on It was a big success

Stone his legs broken, was absent from the stage for 18 months. Then he appeared in the musical comedy "Ripples," wearing crutches.

WIFE STAYED HOME FOR POST'S COMFORT

Planned To Go with Him at First Then Changed Her Mind

By The Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 16—Mrs Wiley Post, wife of the round-the-world flier was possibly spared the fate of her husband and Will Rogers because she wanted them to be comfortable it was recalled here today

En route to Ponca City Okla from where she bade Wiley good bye 10 days ago Mrs Post paused here briefly between planes and explained why she didn't accompany her husband northward as planned

I wanted Wiley to be more comfortable" she said And besides there are other reasons"

The other reasons evidently included an operation which was to be performed in Ponca City reports from there said

Rumors of a marital rift between herself and Post she branded baloney and said her failure to join the intrepid flier on his Arctic flight was not due to a quarrel.

Mrs Post slipped quietly into Ponca City a day or so ago seeking to escape publicity attending the flight.

I E (Bud) Gray Post's brother in law has been a flier himself for about 15 years

When told of the crash he said I feel confident that the accident was caused by some motor trouble for Wiley never took chances with defective mechanical parts

His past record and his care in making those flights into the stratosphere prove that

Rogers Visited Here in 1926 on "Concert" Tour

Marion was host to Will Rogers on March 11 1926 when he gave one of his famous concerts in The Star auditorium appearing under the auspices of the Marion Etude Recital club

The philosopher-comedian kept his audience in gales of laughter from the time he stepped onto the stage swinging a lariat and chewing gum until his listeners finally let him go more than two hours later

He announced that he came with charity to none and malice to all and that being just like a politician he could talk on anything and the less he knew about it the more he could talk about it

Meets The Consumers

His audience literally howled when he razzed the city about the holes in the West Center street paving and the hard water trouble He opened his concert with a bang when he announced he had been down east associating with the bootleggers and had come out west to meet the consumers

Shortly before he went on the platform he talked with citizens who could give him information on timely subjects in Marion and by the time he started talking his keen wit had played with what he learned till the resulting observations brought side-splitting laughter from his responsive audience

He recalled his acquaintance with the late President Harding, At the time of the President's death in 1923 Rogers devoted his daily paragraph to the man who he wrote was one of the country's most human Presidents'

Visits Memorial Room

Before the concert' Rogers visited the Harding Memorial room in The Star office

The entire two hours that Rogers was on the auditorium stage he talked almost continuously, doing a little lariat swinging from time to time discussing topics of national, state and local interest. When he closed he said he would be wiling to come back to Marion the next year and guaranteed a complete new line of jokes "because congress will be meetin' in the meantime"

WILL ROGERS' CAREER MAKES NOTABLE STORY

make a remarkable record for scholarship he did not fail

His mother wanted him to become a Methodist minister but Will had learned to ride a horse and throw a rope on his father's ranch so he went back to the range Then starting with wild west shows and carnivals he went on along the road that finally brought him to the very top of his profession as an actor

Joins Wild West Show

A rancher Zach Mulhall organized a wild west show and Will joined it finally reaching New York There is a tradition that he first attracted public notice on a large scale when he lassoed a wild steer that broke loose at Madison Square Garden and was about to dash through the crowd

Certainly shortly after his first appearance at the garden he was on the vaudeville stage Charley Mack of Moran and Mack told of Will's initial efforts in vaudeville He was pretty bad said Mack and grew discouraged He talked it over with Charley

Where are you going?" asked Mack

Back to Oklahoma

Been fired yet?

The manager said I was pretty punk

Yeh you're all of that but has he actually told you that you are fired?

Well no

Don't quit till he tells you maybe you can stick it out to Saturday night That will be three days more pay

Before the week was out Will happened to make a wise crack about something he saw in a newspaper an observation shyly delivered of something that struck his fancy 'The audience laughed Rogers tried some other joshing remarks and was made

Enters Movies

It was a short step to Hammerstein's Roof at $150 a week and then he spent six years as the star of Ziegfeld's Follies

He ventured into motion pictures but failed to score the success expected The silent screen gave the comedian no chance to convulse his audiences with his homely observations rendered in a drawl that only Rogers knew But when talking pictures appeared Rogers became a boxoffice riot and thereafter the legitimate theater saw little of him

When his friend Fred Stone was injured in an airplane accident, in 1928, just before he was to open a new play in New York Rogers rushed across the continent, took the role 'for old Fred' and scored another hit

He continued however, to go on lecture tours' packing great crowds into theaters, auditoriums, school houses and churches He raised a small fortune for the drouth sufferers in 1930, and in his quiet way gave thousands of dollars of his private fortune to charity.

His wealth was estimated by his friends at several million dollars and he carried life insurance of approximately $1,000,000. He never talked about his money but he was a high salaried actor for years. His salary was $25,000 a week when he worked He was paid $2,000 a week for stage appearances and he was understood to have received $15,000 for eight radio broadcasts.

He met Betty Blake at a candy pullin' in Oologah, but it took him a year to win her. He was too bashful to propose and finally he worked his way to ...

box for a number of newspapers containing sage comment on the day's happenings

He was seriously mentioned as a candidate for the presidential nomination in 1932 but laughed the suggestion off by saying

A comedian can only last till he takes himself serious or his audiences takes him serious and I don't want either one of those to happen to me until I'm dead (if then) so let's stop all this foolishness right now

Clem Rogers father of Will played a part in adopting the first constitution of the state of Oklahoma and a county was named for him Of this Will once said: Heck they had to; nobody could pronounce the old name Coowescoowee

In Claremore a hotel is named The Will Rogers a six story building, which the comedian boasted had more bath rooms than Buckingham Palace

I used to envy General Grant and Jesse James because they had cigars named after them But shucks now I've kinda got it on em

He couldn't be bothered with grammar either in his writings or lectures Once an interviewer suggested he took too many liberties with the laws of syntax What's that? he asked Sounds like bad news The other explained it meant grammar whereupon the sage laughed and replied

Didn't know they was buying grammar now I'm just as dumb I had a notion it was thoughts and ideas"

His most repeated remark was All I know I read in the papers and he read practically every word in every available paper wherever he happened to be each morning Once he was asked if he read any fiction He replied Sure the newspapers

He was an ardent admirer of Mark Twain and on a visit to Virginia City Nev where the great humorist once lived he tried to find a bed Twain had occupied The quest was vain for he was told that when the writer lived there he was too poor to own a bed

He always denied that he was an actor

I'm not smart enough to act' he said If they can find a role that's sort of like me I'm all right Otherwise I'm punk

His employers in the motion picture industry never bothered to write dialogue for his films He couldn't or wouldn't remember He said just what seemed about the right thing to say at the time.

His studio prepared a 'grand' place for him to occupy on the lot A sanded garden decorated with cactus plants surrounded an adobe hut dressed up with an electric kitchen and a living room filled with western and Indian trophies Rogers looked in, said it was "swell" and never went back until former President and Mrs Coolidge came to call. He ushered them into the house, saying, "They had to set somewheres didn't they?"

He could do almost anything with a rope and was a great horseback rider but once while a guest at Hoot Gibson's ranch he had to decline to enter a milking contest, being forced to admit he never had learned to milk a cow.

He found his recreation in playing polo and unlike other stars of the motion pictures he could ... [illegible]

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON Aug 16—Signal headquarters were notified by the Seattle office today of the finding of the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post where their plane crashed in Alaska

Shocked by the news officials said notice of the tragedy had already been dispatched to the widows of the two by the army

Immediate inquiries were sent to Seattle for all information available In the ordinary course those in charge explained a report of such an incident would be made to Washington at once

It was not understood here just how word of such an accident would reach the mainland so quickly Fliers who had been across the Fairbanks to Point Barrow route said it was so wild that a plane might crash without the information being known for days

Secretary Roper said commerce department aviation inspectors were dispatched immediately to the scene of the crash He said the accident was not on a scheduled airline and the plane was privately owned so his inspectors lacked jurisdiction

We will be as helpful as we can however he said adding that words cannot express my sorrow at the loss of these two splendid developers of aviation

Murray Hall department inspector stationed at Anchorage Alaska already has gone to the scene

Col Dawson Olmstead of the signal corps explained today that the army maintains a wireless station at Point Barrow the point farthest north in Alaska where any army activities are carried on for the purpose of gathering and transmitting weather reports

Morgan is the only army man on duty there

There is also a small hospital with Dr Greist in charge and an American school teacher Every one else in the vicinity of Point Barrow are Eskimos or Indians

Stephen Early a secretary to the President communicated with Mr Roosevelt's aide at Hyde Park in an effort to notify the President

At the time of the call Mr Roosevelt was on an automobile trip and was not immediately informed

Stephen B Gibson assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of coast guard instructed the service to do anything possible to facilitate transportation of the bodies

MARION POLICE NAB MEN AFTER HOLDUPS

call at 11.20 last night from Bucyrus police reporting the holdup All available patrolmen and highway patrolmen from the Marion substation were notified to be on the lookout for two men in a green Chevrolet coach, license number unknown

DeWees and Kirts drove out North Main street to patrol route No 4 from Bucyrus and stopped their automobile for a red traffic signal at Main and George streets DeWees spotted a green coach at the Sohio service station while waiting for the traffic signal to change.

One of the men was out of the car and in the station and the other was seated behind the wheel. DeWees and Kirts arrested them and took them to city prison, returning to search the car. According to John Thomas of north Marion, night attendant at the station, the captain and policeman found a 38 caliber Smith & Wesson, loaded revolver with blood-... and a .22 caliber ... automatic ... in the front seat of the car. The money, $113.55 in cash, was found in a compartment in the instrument panel.

Thomas said the men had him put five gallons of gasoline in their car and had not yet paid him when DeWees and Kirts apprehended them.

"Both bandits were questioned here before Bucyrus police arrived and admitted the Bucyrus holdup ...

PASSING ALONG CURVES ILLEGAL

Main Causes of Accidents Says Black, of Highway Patrol.

BY COL. LYNN E. BLACK
Highway Patrol
(Member of the Associated Press)

... and ignorance ... which a curve ... ed are the two ... curves have ... ding places for ... is no excuse ... mer, and little ... in order to save ... seconds, passes an... where clear vision ... is impossible, is ... operation in a ... should be dealt ... an act occur... of a highway ... results in a ... often arrest—even if the offending motorist is fortunate enough to escape the more serious consequences of an accident.

Any motorist who, before starting out in his car, would put on a pair of black glasses which completely obscure his vision, would undoubtedly be considered as a subject for observation in a clinic for mental defectives. Furthermore, it is likely that he would be considered a menace to society and placed in some institution for confinement. The difference between a person of this sort and a motorist who passes another on a "blind" curve is so small as to be practically negligible.

Not knowing how to negotiate a curve properly is not as serious an offense as passing on a curve but the accidents resulting from such ignorance are oftentimes just as terrible.

The best thing to do upon approaching a curve is to slow down, of course. However, on entering the curve, centrifugal force tends to drag your car to the outside and the experienced driver will accelerate and steer more sharply into the curv, thereby forcing his car along the proper course.

Statistics recently released by John Jaster Jr., director of highways, show that 17.5 per cent of all accidents reported during the first six months of 1935 occurred on curves. Learning how to negotiate curves and refraining from passing on curves will do much to reduce this figure to a minimum.

"RUSHING THE CAN" TO TAKE NEW FORM

By International News Service

HAMMOND, Ind.—Beer in cans ranging from a pint to five gallons in size will soon make its appearance to the trade.

First order for the new containers is being completed at the plant of the American Can Co. here and made ready for shipment to a Milwaukee brewery.

A new process makes possible the use of the can for beer and both the can and brewing industry are anxiously watching the results of the trial on the drinking public.

Tin plate for the order is being rolled in Hammond mills and successful use of cans for the brewing trade is expected to boost the tin plate production in the area.

The new tin container is convenient for the retail trade and is expected to supplant somewhat the traditional bottle.

"RECOVERY CAMP" BUILT FOR CONVICTS

By United Press

MARQUETTE, Mich. — Experiments with a prison "recovery camps" designed to give prisoners an opportunity to adjust themselves to a free environment before they are released, are being conducted at Hardwood, Mich., by Warden Walter F. Gries of Marquette penitentiary and the Michigan prison commission.

When the camp is completed nearly 80 prisoners who have good records will be placed there. One primary purpose of the camp, which resembles a lumber or CCC camp, is to separate first offenders from hardened criminals.

Work at the camp consists of building roads, reforestation, and farming.

HEARING IN APPEAL OF FIREMAN ENDED

Wyandot County Judge Expected To Rule on Case Next Week

An appeal hearing in the case of Burdette Pindley former city fireman on a civil service commission decision upholding his dismissal from the fire department by Jesse Warrick former safety director was concluded in common pleas court late yesterday.

A decision from Judge Russell H. Kear of Upper Sandusky on the bench for Judge Hector S. Young is expected early in September. Briefs will be filed with Judge Kearby, the attorneys.

Warrick dismissed Pindley from the fire department in July of 1934 on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman following an investigation of his alleged visits to a disorderly house on S. State street where he is said to have impersonated a police officer in attempts to extract money from the inmates of the house.

Witnesses called in the case were Police Chief W. F. Marks, Fire Chief F. J. McFarland, Warrick and Pindley. The two chiefs testified they found Pindley at the house the night of May 3 1934 a short time after Chief Marks received a telephone message from the house that Pindley was there impersonating a police officer.

On a charge of disorderly conduct growing out of the raid, Pindley won an appeal in the court of appeals which reversed the municipal and common pleas courts which found Pindley guilty.

DOWN THE RIVER

This Resumes Trip With Note for Kingfish

By The Associated Press

STEUBENVILLE O Aug 15—Three aged men in a leaky boat set out on the Ohio river today for New Orleans.

Captain Jack Whitehead the 83 year-old skipper said they will stop at Wheeling, W Va for funds and supplies.

He and the crew of the F D Roosevelt had waited here since Sunday night for funds and supplies from Youngstown only to learn late yesterday they had been forwarded to Wheeling.

The bottom of the boat was damaged going over a dam It will be repaired at Wheeling.

The trio is enroute to New Orleans where the captain plans to urge Sen Huey Long not to run for President.

GOVERNOR EXPECTED TO CALL LAWMAKERS

will say that such a cost is justified the governor said.

Gov Davey said he was not concerned with the suit to compel him to order an election and that the writ issued in a Sandusky court would not be binding because although the Ohio Constitution makes a special election mandatory it fixes no date.

Davey said he had talked by telephone with Secretary Ickes but that he did not see Harry L Hopkins federal emergency relief administrator with whom he has been in controversy saying there isn't anything for me to see him about.

Asked about his plans following the official conferences Davey said:

I think I'll take a day or two of rest I haven't had one since inauguration Just try and find me.

A formal call by the governor accompanied by an imposing entourage at the White House for his first talk with the President since their quarrel over Ohio relief administration last March was the highlight of a good will tour which enabled Davey to say:

Everything is harmony We are cooperating 100 per cent.

This put the seal on at least a surface truce which is expected to carry through the 1936 campaign and facilitate the healing of a political breach which threatened to make serious trouble for both the state and national Democratic tickets in Ohio next year.

Visit Congressmen

From the White House Davey and his entourage went to the Capitol where they met in the house military affairs committee room with Ohio Democratic congressmen Sen Robert J Bulkley of Cleveland and Rep Patrick S Drewry of Virginia chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee.

Davey spoke at length outlining what he considered to be the major achievements of his administration and his plans for a united party front in the 1936 campaign.

Later in the day Davey talked over the telephone with Secretary of the Interior Harold L Ickes whom he assured that formal application for the $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 PWA funds would be forthcoming as soon as legal details could be worked out.

Handed Letter

As he left the White House today the governor was handed by Marvin H McIntyre presidential secretary the following letter from the President outlining what the federal government is prepared to do toward the state's institution construction program:

My Dear Gov Davey:

I have your letter of Aug 8 1935 in which you request the federal government to make a grant of 45 per cent of the cost of construction and reconstruction of buildings at various state institutions You mention that the state could profitably use between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 for such projects.

It might be possible for the federal emergency administration of public works in addition to making a 45 per cent grant to advance funds by way of a loan for the remaining 55 per cent of the cost of the projects if the state were in a position to offer legal security for such loan I am informed that an arrangement might be made whereby legal security might be delivered.

I understand from your letter that you contemplate calling a special session of the Ohio legislature in the near future I have instructed Administrator Ickes to place at your disposal the legal division of the public works administration to assist in the preparation of legislation as seems advisable in order to accomplish the suggested program.

As speed is of the essence I suggest that on behalf of the state you file immediately a formal application with L A Boulay state PWA director for Ohio for a loan of 55 per cent and a grant of 45 per cent to finance the projects you have in mind A state program of this nature would seem very desirable.

Very sincerely,
Franklin D Roosevelt

SLAYER AND TRAIN WRECKER CONFESSES

Ohioan Admits He Killed Woman and Opened Railroad Switch

By The Associated Press

IRONTON O Aug 15—Sheriff Bernard R Monte of Lawrence county said today that James Thompson 25 of Hanging Rock O, confessed to wrecking a fast Norfolk & Western passenger train at Haverhill O on the night of April 17 1935.

The wrecking resulted in the death of two members of the crew.

The sheriff said Thompson told detectives also that he killed Mrs California Rogers 74 at her farm near here during the autumn of 1933.

Thompson confessed beating the aged woman over the head with a poker after she refused to give him money Monte said.

The young man made the confessions after he had been questioned for more than two hours by railway detectives.

I wanted to wreck the train and rob the mail car Monte quoted Thompson as saying so I took the nuts out of a switch and threw it over with a crow bar and then turned the light around, so the green would show.

I hid in the woods by the track until the train came along and wrecked when it hit the open switch but I lost my nerve and ran into the woods when people began screaming and climbing from the wrecked cars Monte said he told detectives.

The train was bound from Cincinnati to Norfolk and was traveling at 60 miles an hour railway detectives said.

J H Meyers 55 engineer and T J Kemp 45 both of Portsmouth O were killed Carl Wright 47 of Columbus J H Van Hemmert 50 of Sardinia and D A Cole of Huntington W Va mail clerks were seriously hurt.

Snowden Warns of New World War

Editor's Note (Viscount Snowden of Ickornshaw former British chancellor of the exchequer and Labor leader broke a lifetime rule against commenting publicly when he wrote the following article on the eve of the tripartite conference in Paris for discussion of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict Viscount Snowden was branded a dangerous pacifist when he inveighed against war in 1914)

(Copyright 1935 by The Associated Press)

TILFORD Surrey England Aug 15—The Italo-Ethiopian dispute has in it all the elements of a world war.

International affairs are now so interrelated an apparently trivial incident may have immense unexpected consequences.

The murder of an Austrian archduke was the match which set into a huge conflagration combustible material which for years had been accumulating.

The elements constituting the present menace to world peace as a result of the dispute between Italy and Ethiopia may be summarized as follows:

1 The covenant of the League of Nations and the Paris pact make an isolated dispute the business of all the signatories to these documents.

2 Unprovoked attack by one of the nations upon another member of the league compels the league to come to the assistance of the jeopardized nation Under the Paris pact such an attack becomes a violation of international law and morality.

3. If Italy persists in her declared intention to attack and conquer Ethiopia, then her action is clearly in violation of both the covenant of the league and the conditions of the Paris pact. In the event of war the league must, if it discharges its obligations, take military or economic sanctions against Italy.

There is no doubt about the intentions of Italy. Mussolini has made these intentions abundantly clear. He has for all practical purposes, already declared war.

SECURITY PROGRAM EXPECTED TO EXPAND

Roosevelt Envisions Further Adjustments on Signing of New Legislation

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON Aug 15—President Roosevelt embarking the government on the new deal's vast social security program foresees further social and economic adjustments to come.

When he signed the security bill into law yesterday he said it was a cornerstone in a structure which is being built but is by no means complete.

(The bill which the President said would apply to 30,000,000 persons provides for contributory old age pensions federal state pensions for the aged needy a federal state unemployment insurance system special care for dependent children and mothers It contains a huge tax program to raise the funds)

Legislators and high officials surrounded the President in the cabinet room as he affixed his signature.

The measure the President said gives at least some protection to 30,000,000 of our citizens who will reap direct benefits.

Declaring that the bill would make this session of congress historic for all time he added:

We can never insure 100 per cent of the population against 100 per cent of the hazards and vicissitudes of life but we have tried to frame a law which will give some measure of protection to the average citizen and to his family against the loss of a job and against poverty stricken old age.

SCRAP OVER HOPSON ENDS IN CONGRESS

chambers to take Hopson into custody O'Connor's idea was that the house should place Hopson under technical arrest so the senate could not get him.

Asks for Arrest

Chairman Black Democrat of Alabama of the senate committee drew up a resolution directing Jurney to arrest Hopson unless he appeared immediately to answer the contempt citation.

Jurney's hunt had not been entirely in vain He had succeeded in serving on William A Hill of Boston Hopson's lawyer a senatorial contempt citation summoning him to answer charges that he interferred with the service of a subpoena on Hopson.

Jurney had entered the lobby of the Mayflower hotel and was interviewing the manager No Mr Hopson was not registered there Yes Mr Hill was.

Across the lobby was Hill entering the cocktail lounge Hat in one hand cane in the other Jurney sprinted for that room Hill had just sat down and was toying with a pretzel when the sergeant at arms drew up.

I'm the sergeant at arms of the senate said Jurney I want to serve a citation on you.

No Help To Hunters

Yes sir said Hill chewing the pretzel.

Do you know where we might find Mr Hopson? Jurney asked.

No I couldn't say I have no idea.

Thank you.

Thank you.

Jurney made for his limousine to continue the hunt.

Hill said Jurney's technique in serving the summons was very lovely But the whole case, he said was "a terrific legal situation over something that doesn't amount to a hoot in hell"

Hopson's defense, he indicated would be that he was under a subpoena from the house committee and therefore under its exclusive jurisdition.

Hill denied testimony before the Black committee that he interfered with a committee investigator who sought vainly to serve a subpoena on Hopson Tuesday The subpoena finally was served yesterday as Hopson left a session of O'Connor's house committee.

But Hopson did not turn up before the senate group in response to the document. After waiting some hours, Chairman Black went before the senate and obtained the contempt citation.

BINDLEY DISMISSAL APPEAL IS UP TODAY

Former Fireman Contests Removal From Department, Judge Kear Hears Case

An appeal by Burdette Bindley of a civil service commission decision upholding his dismissal from the Marion fire department by Jess Warrick former safety director was to be heard by Judge Russell H Kear of Upper Sandusky in common pleas court here this afternoon.

Judge Kear will replace Judge Hector S Young on the common pleas bench through Saturday because a number of cases in which Judge Young was interested when he was a practicing attorney are scheduled to come before the court.

Warrick dismissed Bindley from the fire department on a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman The charge grew out of his alleged visits last spring to a disorderly house where it is said he have impersonated a police officer in attempting to extract money from the inmates.

On a charge of disorderly conduct growing out of the same incident the court of appeals reversed the municipal and common pleas courts which found Bindley guilty.

If Judge Kear reverses the decision of the civil service commission Bindley will be eligible to return to his position in the fire department unless the city would decide to carry the case to the court of appeals Theodore B Orbs city solicitor said Bindley is represented by J W ...

Army 'War Cry' Collection Is Hobby of Marion Man

[illegible] of the last cen- [illegible] was watching [illegible] Russia and [illegible] Christian Mission' [illegible] tion Army' and [illegible] ary form of gov- [illegible] ing this period that the 'Christian Mission Magazine' became 'The War Cry'. The organization had been founded in 1865.

"Who has not heard of the 'War Cry'? Its title, at once provocative and euphonious, its spirit as courageous and jovial as Elizabethan seafarers, its style which, whether by repulsion or attraction, impressed itself upon every reader, and an inestimable fund of enthusiasm among its distributors thrust the Army's 'official organ' into a place of prominence many years ago. Whether the name provokes a jibe, a joke, a shudder, or warm admiration, it is certainly noticed when it is heard, and that, after all is the aim of the modern publicist.

"While in training school in New York City I was covering my War Cry route. I decided to try to add a few new customers to my weekly list and deciding on a very prosperous looking apartment house, I entered and commenced my work. I had not gone very far when, in response to my knock a very attractive, middle-aged woman came to the door, 'Would you like to buy a 'War Cry'?" I asked and to my surprise she exclaimed, "Don't you know the war is over," and slammed the door in my face. This was shortly after the World war.

Different Picture

"There is another side to the above picture. As a lad of 15 years of age I sold 35 War Crys every week. One of my customers, an elderly woman always had a cup of hot chocolate and some cake ready for me when I called at her home.

"The Army's periodicals have been given the name 'White-Winged' messengers and are today encircling the globe, reaching those to whom the spoken word would be inaccessible, and proving a valuable aid in uplifting all classes of humanity.

"The 'War Cry' is printed in more than 45 languages and dialects. There are many more than that number of newspapers bearing that name of its nearest possible equivalent. The total circulation exceeds 2,600,000 copies each issue. Copies are seen regularly in every clime. Wherever you find a 'Salvationist' you will find a copy of the 'War Cry' in his particular tongue. No other organization in the world possesses a press quite so universal and quite so unanimous. There are no paid advertisements in the War Cry. All profit goes into the national funds of the Army.

"The story of the printing, on a machine that tore more copies than it produced, and of the distribution; how angry mobs would take the papers away from the seller and destroy them; how the first issue in 1879 was sent out by cab, has often been commented upon. More difficult would it be to describe the distribution of the present chain of 'War Crys' and other periodicals issued from swift modern rotaries and color machines and delivered by fast mail service in our own land, and from clanking 'flat-beds' in the dripping tropics, by road, rail, bullock bandy, horseback, sleigh, steamer, canal boat, canoe, steam yacht, ox wagon, bare feet, sandaled feet, broad African feet and dainty Japanese.

Go To Every Clime

"Imagine the almost innumerable host of 'white-winged messengers' finally arriving at their destination—slum homes, foul hovels, drinking dens, lonely planters' dwellings, leper colonies, palm huts, palaces, hospitals, prisons, kraals, mudhouses, canal boats, apartments, farms, factories — almost every type of human dwelling from Iceland to Cape Horn.

"The small army of editors, writers, printers, and distributors engaged in this branch of Army activity must of necessity toil in faith, without hope of visible results. These workers have come from all walks of life many of them having been connected with leading periodicals and commanding fine salaries, have renounced all possible monetary remunerrtion for a life devoted to the service and uplift of humanity.

JOKE WRITTEN IN FUNERAL WREATH

By International News Service

SOFIA—Old stories travel far. On the other hand, one of the jokes of grandfather's day in the U. S. may suddenly have had a real life parallel. Anyway, the following dispatch appeared today from Plovdoiv, small Bulgarian town:

Tears gave way to subdued laughter at a funeral in Plovdoiv. A mother-in-law died and a sumptuous burial was in preparation for her by her only daughter and son-in-law, when a telephone call came from an apprentice in the undertaker's office.

"What shall we inscribe on the cross?" asked the undertaker's man.

"Why, 'Rest in Peace,' of course, as is usually the custom," the son-in-law answered.

"How about the other side, sir," the boy inquired.

"On both sides," he was told.

During the funeral service the cross and the bier were covered with so many wreaths that the inscription upon the cross was not noticed. At the cemetery, people commenced to whisper and even smile. The inscription on the floral cross read:

"Sleep in Peace on Both Sides!"

WOMEN DISCOVER THEY ARE SISTERS

By United Press

GALESBURG, Ill.—Mrs. Arthur Swanson of Galesburg and her sister, Mrs. Theodore Ousbeck of Arlington, Mass., met here for the first time in 50 years recently. Until last October, neither woman knew she had a sister.

Thirty years ago Mrs. Swanson and her parents left Sweden, where she was born. Prior to that time her father and mother had permitted a second daughter, Mrs. Ousbeck, to be adopted by a neighboring family. The girls were too small to know of the existence of each other when the separation occurred.

It was not until last October, when their mother died in Sweden and left property to both, that either woman knew she had a living relative. When the will was filed and the estate settled, the facts of the separation became known.

Mrs. Ousbeck has been in the United States 24 years. Her foster parents never had told her she was an adopted child, and her own mother kept the secret from both of the sisters until her death two years ago.

Hiccoughs

While on a diner recently one of my fellow passengers was suddenly seized with an attack of hiccough. His distress was annoying to the patient and to those around him.

Numerous forms of treatment were offered and some of these added a note of amusement to the situation. Among the many suggestions were to "hold the breath," take a few swallows of water, inhale fumes from a piece of horseradish, breath into a paper bag and tickle the nose to cause sneezing.

The treatment of hiccough is often difficult because the exact cause may be hard to find. Forcible holding of the breath is useful in some cases. Of internal remedies one of the most popular is oil of turpentine. If hiccough is due to nerve reflex from the stomach vomiting will give relief.

Attacks of hiccough ordinarily subside within a few moments. But severe attacks may be continued over several hours and may recur at intervals for weeks or even months. No doubt you have read in the newspapers of difficult and alarming cases of hiccough.

Hiccough is due to a sudden or violent contraction of the diaphragm. The diaphragm is a muscular structure located in the floor of the chest dividing the chest from the abdominal cavity. It is intimately related to breathing and moves up and down as we inhale and exhale. It is supplied with a complex network of nerves and when these nerves are irritated a spasm is produced and this causes the symptom hiccough.

This spasm can often be traced to irritation caused by a localized infection such as disease in the liver gall bladder stomach tonsils or teeth. If the stomach is over distended it may create a disturbance of the diaphragm. For this reason hiccough often occurs after a heavy meal.

Occasionally this distressing symptom may follow some major abdominal operation in which the various organs have been handled. When this is the case it usually occurs within 24 hours after the operation and although annoying is rarely persistent or dangerous.

Hiccough may be excited reflexly by organic disease of the nervous system. It is known to occur in functional disturbances such as hysteria and emotional shock as well as in certain constitutional conditions such as diabetes gout and alcoholism.

Hiccough in infants is usually the result of too rapid or too frequent feeding. Most times the symptom follows a feeding and may occur when the infant has air or gas in the stomach. A few spoonsful of warm water will ordinarily stop them. Sometimes it becomes necessary to lessen the number of feedings.

Never neglect persistent hiccough. As I have said it may be the result of some serious disturbance. If simple measures do not bring about relief it is best to consult with a physician.

A Year's Extra Happiness!

"I can never thank you enough for talking George into buying last year" said one of our women customers. "I remembered the time very distinctly. I knew George well enough to tell him what I really thought about furniture buying. And I did!

That young couple were eating out their hearts in a tiny cooped-up apartment. They wanted to buy furniture of their own but George couldn't see starting an account. Said he didn't like to owe money. However his wife and I finally swung him to see things our way. Terms were adjusted to fit that couple's income. Yes, said the young bride the other day, the enjoyment of having our home a year early has been priceless."

DAVEY MAY ORDER SPECIAL ELECTION

Directs Secretary To Draw Proclamation; Decision Not Yet Definite.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16—John M. Caren, executive secretary to Gov. Davey, said today the governor had ordered him to draft a proclamation calling for a special election next May to nominate a successor to the late Congress-at-large, Charles V. Truax.

Caren said the executive in a long distance telephone conversation from New York, made it plain, that he had not decided definitely to call the election and wanted the proclamation made ready for him when he returns to Columbus early next week.

Should the primary be called for May 12, Carn said Truax's successor would be elected at the regular election in Nov. 3, 1936, to serve until the first Monday in Jan., 1937.

Ohio Republicans, incensed because Gov. Davey at first refused to call a special election to fill Truax's seat on the grounds it would cost too much money, charged him with fear that the election might prove too great a test for the "new deal" in the state.

STRATOSPHERE STILL HELD LURE FOR POST

Tried Cross Country Hop in Thin Air Four Times and Each Futile.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16—With four unsuccessful cross country stratosphere flights behind him, Wiley Post went to his death last night convinced that the future of aviation lies in the upper reaches of the sky.

Four times the daring 'round the world flier hopped away from Union air terminal at Burbank in his famous plane, the Winnie Mae, attempting to span the continent in less than nine hours at altitudes ranging above 32,500 feet. Each time mishap awaited his efforts.

The first trip ended on the Mojave desert near here; the next at Cleveland, the third at Lafayette, Ind., and the fourth try at Wichita, Kas.

It was after this last flight that Post retired his famed Winnie Mae, announcing the ship was unsuited to the needs of stratosphere flying.

Today the Winnie Mae, which twice carried Post around the world, sits in a hanger here.

Fassler and daughter Maxine of Columbus, and Miss Jean Ewing of Cambridge were guests of Mrs. Avice Cope, Mrs. Gale Benedict and Miss Anna Gale Colgman Tuesday and Wednesday.

Presbies Win; To Meet Gasco in Finals

KNOCK FOREST LAWN OUT OF RUNNING IN COUNTY TOURNAMENT

Winners Play Good Defensive Ball To Take Game 3 to 1, Under Lights

The Presbies blasted Forest Lawn out of the county tournament running by a 3 to 1 score last night under the lights at Lincoln park and won for themselves the right to meet the Gasco team in the county finals Saturday night.

It was a sensational ball game but a well played one last night's contest found the Presbies continuing the fine defensive playing they've been showing in this tournament games this week. Forest Lawn out hit the winners 3 to 2.

Eight Strikeouts

Maynard Snyder usually one of the top-notchers couldn't control his pitching very well and net result was that Forest Lawn couldn't keep the Presbies off the base paths. Snyder's usual ability was present at times as is evidenced by eight strikeouts credited to him. His wildness was shown in four bases on balls and a quartet of costly wild pitches which gave Presbie base runners unearned advancements.

LeRoy Lowery the slim lad who does so well for the Presbies didn't have the strikeout record that Snyder had but he didn't issue the bases on balls or the wild pitches. Lowery fanned two and walked two and didn't uncork any impossible throws when there were men on bases. He has been pitching the same consistent ball all through this week's tournament play.

Strong In Field

A strong team in the field all the Presbies have to worry about is not letting their opponents get any to good hits. Lowery sees to that and while they hit him frequently the defensive ability of the church team turns most hits into outs.

The Presbies scored two runs last night in the second inning and that was all they needed. Snyder walked Gabby Gallant and sent him to third on a pair of wild pitches. Robbins flied easily to the first baseman and W. Pohler hit a sharp grounder second base way. A Bauldauf scooped the grounder in easily but when he threw to the plate to get Gabby the throw was wild and the run scored. Pohler who was on second base by this time went to third on another wild pitch and scored after Harry Winters caught a high foul hit out beyond the third base bleachers by Ray Walters.

Error Costs Run

In the third inning the only Presbie error of the game sent Clayt Harper scampering across the plate after he had singled and gone to third on passed balls.

Mill Pohler doubling for the only extra base hit of the game at the opening of the fourth scored the other run for the Presbies when Snyder walked three men before he could get the side out.

Finals of the Marion county tournament will be played Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock under the lights at Lincoln park. Bill Fabian, tournament manager, announced today.

An interesting thing about the tournament play is that two Presbie players Gallant and Zahn will desert to the Gasco ranks since they've been playing with both teams all season. Two reserve players will probably fill in on the Presbie team.

The winner of Saturday night's game will be Marion county champion and will meet the winners of two other counties at Lincoln park Monday night. One of the two championship teams is the Faultless Rubber Co. team from Ashland county. The other team representing Crawford county will be either Lemert or the National Vault team from Galion.

District tournament winners go to Cincinnati at the end of next week to participate in the state tournament.

Snyder set the Presbies down in order and struck out five men but the damage had already been done the runs in and the game won for the No. 1 league team.

SILK MILL, GASCO WINNERS IN GAMES

Two games provided fun and exercise for 26 players in the Industrial league last night but as far as changing the league standings goes the games might as well not have been played.

The Silk Mill nine and the Gasco team resting in first and second place in the league respectively both field meets with the Pollack and Hamburger, two last place teams respectively.

Silk Mill pounded out 17 runs against the Hamburger team 3 and the Gasco went one better by beating Pollack 11 to 4.

PLAY AT FOREST HILLS

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—With the invaders and even money choice to score their first triumph in five tries featuring net stars of England and the United States renew today their Wightman Cup rivalry at Forest Hills.

A United States government scientist has advanced a theory that explosions in city sewers are caused not by sewer gas but by exhaust gas from automobiles which is heavy and sinks into sewers.

NEW YORK GIANTS DEFEAT CARDINALS; CLEVELAND LOSES

St Louis Trailing by Four Games; Chicago Beats Brooklyn Dodgers.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Whatever Bill Terry's Giants atone for last season's debacle by walking off with the National League pennant they apparently have no intention of letting the rough and ready Cardinals take it away while they're playing each other.

Just as they rallied in St. Louis a couple of weeks ago and routed the Cards in one crucial series the Giants have started to dispose of another St. Louis threat in the current meeting. By winning a 5 to 4 decision yesterday they prevented St. Louis from taking the lead by direct attack.

The triumph in a bitterly fought game that ended with another magnificent feat as Manager Frankie Frisch fanned with his bat on his shoulder and the tying run on second base in the ninth gave the Giants a four game lead over their challengers. The series has only two more games.

The Cards dropped back into the odd position of holding second place on the percentages while actually trailing the Cubs by a half game. Chicago moved up again by plastering an 11 to 3 defeat on the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The chief Cardinal hopes are that the Cubs will knock off the Giants and then be knocked off in turn or that both those teams will prove weak on the road. Of the 48 remaining St. Louis games 30 are on the home lot. The Giants and Cubs programs are about evenly divided.

The status of the American League race remained unchanged as the Tigers and Yankees both won handily and remained six games apart.

Detroit turned back the Senators 8 to 1 as Charley Gehringer injured second sacker left the bench to drive in the deciding run in a three run burst in the eighth.

The Yanks held to one hit in six frames by Willis Hudlin blasted him from the hill with a five hit three run rally in the seventh to beat the Indians 3-1.

The third place Red Sox turned back the White Sox of Chicago 3-1 as homers by Cronin, Werber and Cooke decided a mound duel between Lefty Grove and Les Tietje.

The Athletics knocked off the cellar dwelling Browns again 5 to 3.

Bob Brown who had not won a game all season turned in a two hit shutout for the Braves and received the backing of Wally Berger's twenty-sixth homer as the Braves whitewashed the Reds 8 to 0.

The Phillies cut loose with a 10 hit assault and trimmed the Pirates 9 to 1.

ANSWERS GIVEN ON SOFTBALL RULES

NOTE—In order that softball fans and players can have a clearer understanding of the game a series of rules interpretations are being published. Official rules of softball will be used together with opinions of local umpires. Readers are invited to submit questions for this feature.

Q—Is a ball striking home plate automatically out?

Ans—No. A batted ball hitting home plate and then settling on fair ground is ruled a FAIR ball if it does not strike the batter while he is in the batter's box.

Q—What is the correct interpretation of the infield fly rule?

Ans—A local umpire says: The infield fly rule seems to cause more confusion on the softball field than any other rule. If before two are out while first and second or first second and third are occupied the batter hit a fair fly ball other than a line drive that can be handled by an infielder the batter is OUT. In such a case it is up to the umpire to declare it an infield fly but the runners may be off their bases or may advance at the risk of the ball being caught, the same as any other fly ball.

Double Main Go Program Booked For Wrestle Show

There'll be both "rassling" and wrestling at Monday night's mat show at the Steam Shovel open air arena on Leeper avenue if principals in a double main go live up to expectations.

In the rassle end of the bill will be George Sauers of Lincoln, Neb., and Bad Boy Brown of Shreveport, La., both of whom are credited by local followers of the sport with being able to rough it up whenever the occasion requires.

Sharing the main feature billing will be two wrestlers of the school of clean scientific procedure. They are Dr. Barney Cosneck, former University of Illinois wrestler and George Craig Oklahoma black smith who has been absent from the local arena for several months.

Sauers needs little introduction to Marion vicinity wrestle followers. Monday night he proved to Speedy LaPance the tearing [illegible] from Canada, that speed [illegible] learned about all of the [illegible] in their previous match [illegible].

Bad Boy Brown two weeks ago demonstrated he has ability to take care of himself in dangerous territory by wading through a maze of opponents to win a battle royal.

Dr. Barney Cosneck [illegible] ago took LaPance to the mat in main go here.

Craig who before disappearing from the local ring several months ago left plenty of evidence of ability in his wake has been on a tour through his home state of Oklahoma. One of opponents whose shoulders he shoved to the floor here before leaving was the Black Panther from Algeria.

Craig has told wrestle followers he had good luck in his Oklahoma contests in recent weeks and is ready to give the doc a busy evening.

There will be a 20 minute opener but the arrangements are not sufficiently complete to announce who will meet in this part of the program.

The show will be started at 8:30. If weather prevents staging the show in the open air arena it will be moved to the Steam Shovel gymnasium.

BIKE RIDERS CALLED TO FINAL MEETING

A final meeting for amateur bike riders will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Friday at 7:30 p. m. All boys planning to take part in the races have been asked to attend this session.

Donald Cram promotion secretary for the Y announced today that the Class D race for boys from 12 to 16 will probably be held next Thursday night. The five mile race will probably be held over till the following week. Prizes given by Marion merchants and the local softball commission will be awarded to winners of first, second and third place in each race and five top prizes will be given in the five mile event.

The following entries have been received to date. Class D—Glen Judy of 310 Silver street, Harold Fralich of 387 Blaine avenue, Melvin McHeight of 606 Bartram avenue and Edward Long, of 140 South Greenwood street.

Classes E and F (boys 16 or over)—Robert Peach of 609 Davids street, Frank Good of 720 Wood street, Junior Shurrock of 120 East Columbia street, Mahlon Gast of 174 South Main street, Clyde Shearer of 285 East Church street and Arthur Daniels of 998 Bryant street.

JAMES M MASON DIES IN CHICAGO

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 16—The "fog horn" voice that helped fan the human windmill Harry Greb and later brought cascades of laughter from baseball fans throughout the nation has been stilled in death.

James M. "Red" Mason, 67, is dead. Death came suddenly to the former manager of Greb in a Chicago hospital last night. Apparently on the road to recovery after a heart attack Tuesday, Mason suddenly collapsed and died.

MANAGERS MEET TONIGHT

Managers of the Intermediate softball league teams will meet at the Y. M. C. A. tonight at 8 o'clock to discuss the coming game between the first and second all league teams picked by the managers. A decision will also be given on a protest which was filed by the Leo Street team. All managers have been asked to be present.

In most big league ball parks the right field fence is the nearest outer barrier but in Crosley field, Cincinnati, it is [illegible] feet from the plate, a long, long way.

THRONG FILLS PROSPECT FOR CENTENNIAL PARADE

Crowning of Queen Also Interesting Feature of Day's Celebration

Special to The Star

PROSPECT O Aug 16—More than 4 000 persons witnessed the centennial parade and the crowning of Miss Irma Louise Lodwig as centennial queen last night. Fifteen floats were in the parade line-up in addition to the queen's float and the floats on which Miss Carroll Dix, "Miss Prospect," and Miss Betty Griffith "Miss Ohio" rode.

The parade and crowning of the queen by Caroline Isler climaxed a day's program which included a farmer's picnic at noon which approximately 600 persons attended with W W Ellerwood of Columbus manager of the Ohio State fair, giving the principal address.

Because of rainy weather the parade was not to be repeated this afternoon as scheduled centennial officials said this morning. A street dance tonight and boat races and roller skating Saturday will bring the week's celebration to a close.

The All Arts club float depicting home life in a log cabin won the $10 first prize. The float Religion entered by the combined churches showing children dressed in white surrounding a white cross won second place and the American Legion float, "The Grave of the Unknown Soldier" was given the third award. An old fashioned sleigh entered by Frank Cunningham was judged the most unique and two floats entered by the Prospect Milk Co comparing the old and modern methods of dairying won the prize for being the best advertising.

A pet parade yesterday morning brought out most of the town's youngsters and attracted a large throng. Greta and Don Moyer dressed in old fashioned costume and riding in a wagon drawn by a goat won the first prize of $2. A "turkey hen" and its owner Jimmy Farrington won second prize and Virginia Ann Johnson and her pet duck were awarded third prize.

In the afternoon Ezra Martin and his troupe of entertainers from station WBNS in Columbus entertained hundreds of persons at the community park.

POLITICS WILL POP IN U. S. CORN BELT

Leaders Disagree, One Claiming Illinois for G. O. P., Other for New Deal

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 16 — Political strategists interested in the big question of the 1936 presidential campaign — what will the corn belt do? — today had their choice of two radically different opinions.

Jacob D. Allen, a founder of the recent Republican grass roots conference aimed to unify G. O. P. strength in 10 midwestern states, and Earl Smith, president of the powerful Illinois Agricultural association, agreed only on one thing.

The corn belt will be the battlefield of the campaign.

Allen said: "The farm vote is experiencing a revolution of sentiment against the new deal and downstate Illinois will carry the Republican national ticket by 200,000."

Smith said: "Illinois farmers are stronger now for the agricultural adjustment administration than at any time since its inception."

The conflicting opinions gave fresh heat to the bubbling political cauldron of Chicago, which as the heart of the corn belt saw these developments:

BOYS USE OLD JUNK IN DIVING HELMET

tity of old fashioned elbow grease. Most of the supplies came from the junk yard.

Work of Assembly

Once they had their materials together and started the actual construction work they finished the complete equipment in little over a week. The outfits consists of one end of a water tank as the helmet which rests on the shoulders of the diver. The head piece, 20 inches high, contains a five by seven inch plate glass window through which the observer looks. Sixty feet of garden hose carry fresh air from two old automobile tire pumps to the helmet. Two heavy lead weights fit on the front and back of the helmet to keep it snug against the wearer's shoulders.

The telephone communication system is fairly simple although the two boys had to do considerable experimenting with it before they managed to have it work properly. The phone system works from two dry cell batteries which the youths bought for that purpose.

The wire connections between the helmet and surface are strung through the air hose. The telephone system was the last part of outfit the boys constructed.

The first tests the boys made with the equipment were at Owens quarry. Prohibition of swimming at Owens drove the boys to Crystal lake for further experimentation.

Study the Fish

"There wasn't anything at the bottom of Owens except a few twisted railroad ties anyway," Exton explained. Fish and turtles were the chief objects of interest although they seldom came closer than within a foot of the diver.

After the first few trials at Owens the boys weren't quite satisfied with the results. They were able to reach the 30-foot bottom of the quarry easily enough but they couldn't walk around well after they were down.

"We couldn't move easily," Alfred Exton said. "We were unable to walk erect without falling over. Our feet seemed to be too light in proportion to the rest of our body."

To remedy this defect the boys got an old pair of shoes and moulded six and one half pound lead soles on the bottom of each shoe. After the shoes were fixed everything went smoothly. The boys were able to walk with ease on the quarry bottom and weren't bothered with light feet. "We still can't start or stop suddenly," Exton said. "It's still work but it's not hard and we don't have to rely on our hands so much for assistance now."

In telling just how the diving process goes on, Exton gave the following description:

"The diver enters the water and the helmet is placed over his head by an assistant who lifts it by two handles at the top provided for that purpose. The diver lets himself down into the water slowly by means of a long rope which is tied securely on the bank. The air supply must be kept going continually by the assistants on shore. The air pumps furnish all the air necessary."

Alfred was most emphatic ... no danger of the diver suffocating because of a faulty air supply.

Bubbles Are Signal

"The air is continually bubbling out of the helmet at the diver's shoulders. Should the air supply stop the diver will know it immediately by the stopping of the hissing sound made by the air pumps or by the clouding of the window glass. If the air begins to go stale the window will start to get misty on the inside," he said.

With the mist on the glass window as a danger signal the diver has time to call through the telephone that something is wrong or that he is going to come up, the youth explained. In case of a hurried emergency the helmet, which seems much lighter under water than it actually is, can be slipped off the diver's head and the helmetless diver can swim quickly to the surface. The lead soled shoes are not heavy enough to prevent swimming, Exton said.

The youths used jerks on the rope for signals between surface and underwater before the telephone system was installed but they have now abandoned such tactics.

Both the boys next fall will enter their senior years at Harding High school. Exton, who did the bulk of the work on the project, hopes to take up mechanical engineering in college. His father is a mechanical engineer.

Exton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Exton of 111 East Center street and Fair is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Fair of 331 Summit street.

NAZIS TO PRESS JEWISH PURGE

Streicher Launches Attack in Address at Two Mass Meetings.

JEWS WARNED BY LEADERS

Remain in Homes While Troops and Police Patrol Streets

BERLIN Aug 16—A more intensive phase of the Nazi anti Semitism drive was foreseen today for Germany on the basis of Julius Streicher's denunciation of Jewry as the nation's racial economic betrayers

Most of the city of anti Semites Streicher whipped thousands of hearers to fervor when in addresses before two mass meetings last night he assailed Jews the foreign press bolshevism and the Catholic baptism of Jesus

All of these he implied were linked with an anti German plot

Despite the hullyhoo that preceded the speeches of the notorious publisher of the anti Semitic Der Stuermer anti which led to fear of new outbreaks his talk was unattended by disorder

Jews Stay Home

Jews warned by their leaders kept to their homes while storm troops and police patrolled the streets until daylight

The only open resentment was shown by Americans who were astounded by a direct reference to a member of the family of United States Ambassador William E Dodd

Americans in the audience expressed the opinion the remarks wouldn't go unnoticed in diplomatic circles

Streicher known as the czar of Franconia was vigorously outspoken in his advocacy of steps against the racial disgrace of mixed marriages between Jews and Aryans

We are proceeding into a great German future" he said which will again save all humanity from the Jewish race

No specific plan for future Jewish restrictions was outlined by Streicher

Cites Lynching In U S

In denouncing the foreign press reports of anti Jewish disturbances Streicher demanded that he press report lynch justice in America His reference to a member of Dodds family was made in his comment on the leading of a woman through the streets flagarded racial traitor

Present at the time this incident occurred he said was Miss Eloise the wife of the American ambassador who was shocked The American press said that in Nurnberg Jews and girls were led through the streets with placards racial traitor on their breasts

He is the right to have meant Martha Dodd the ambassadors daughter who was quoted in America two years ago after a visit to Nurnberg

The Jews who observed themselves from all public places during the fall appeared more aggressive today than at any time during the last months course of terror that followed the decree against them

Raps Catholic Policy

Catholics were wondering about Streichers implications that a German girl shouldnt marry a man with a Catholic baptismal certificate lest he be a Jew and their child different from the white German race

That admonition was given during the publishers disparagement of the Catholic policy of marrying different races provided they are Catholics but discouraging marriage of Catholics and Protestants

It was regarded as significant that none of the ranking cabinet members or other leaders were present although some sent representatives

Streicher is looked on as aspiring to the directorship of the Berlin bureau of anti Jewish affairs He also is reported to be desirous of transferring his newspaper from Nurnberg to the capital

SAYS HE WON'T CALL SPECIAL ELECTION

Asserting it would cost $560 000 Gov Davey (left in white suit) told reporters on the White House steps he would not call a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rep Truax representative at large from Ohio An application for a writ of mandamus to compel him to call the election was filed at Columbus (Associated Press photo)

MUSSOLINI'S DEMAND INCREASES WAR FEAR

European Statesmen Doubt They Will Be Able To Prevent Hostilities

By The Associated Press

PARIS Aug 16—Premier Mussolini's demand for Italian occupation of Ethiopia to enforce any concessions given Italy aroused fear today among the tripartite conference representatives that they would be unable to prevent war in east Africa

Armed occupation was Mussolini's minimum demand as presented to the representatives of France Great Britain and Italy in their conversations for the settlement of the Italo Ethiopian dispute

Premier Pierre Laval of France was expected to seize on Mussolini's terms as a starting point for negotiations which he hoped would close the gap between the British and Italian viewpoint

Emperor Hailie Selassie not represented at the parleys remained an uncertain factor since the three powers problem is to find a way of making Italian control of Ethiopia acceptable to Him

Their hopes lay in the possibility that he would accept Mussolini's minimum demand when he is convinced war is inevitable

While the main parleys were proceeding the conciliation commission resumed work on the Ualual problem with the naming of Nicholas Socrate Politis Greek diplomat as the fifth arbitrator

A decision for Italy was believed certain if it agreed that witnesses will not be heard on the question of who owns Ualual but only on who started the fighting out of which the present controversy has grown

BOND MORATORIUM OPPOSED BY MOSIER

Lieutenant Governor Labels Scheme Advocated by Davey Fallacy

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI O Aug 16—Lt Gov Harold G Mosier again today had stirred political circles in speculation following expressed criticism of public debt moratorium "relief" proposal suggested for Ohio by Gov Davey

In an address before an outing gathering of the Greater Cincinnati Savings & Loan exchange last night Mosier termed such a proposal a "fallacy"

Last Saturday he predicted in an address that if there are contests among the Democrats in the coming primary it will be but the logical procedure of the Democratic party since its founding by Thomas Jefferson"

He did not mention Gov Davey by name then nor last night but political circles were quick to suggest the state executive as the target of his remarks

Davey proposed a public debt moratorium when he first an

ROGERS, POST DIE IN CRASH

ROGERS WITH FAMILY WHILE MAYOR OF HOLLYWOOD

World Wide Fame Won in Will Rogers Career

Will Rogers was given the imposing name of William Penn Adair Rogers but everybody called him Will He was a cowboy humorist writer lecturer philosopher polo player world traveler and flyer but he went up in the air only as a passenger

He was born in Oologah Indian Territory November 4 1879 but he called Claremore Okla his home town and was a legal resident of Oklahoma although he spent most of his time at his ranch between Beverly Hills and Santa Monica California

He had Indian blood in his veins and was proud of it. One of his best wisecracks was based upon this ancestry as he said that his ancestors did not come over on the Mayflower but they met the boat.

His education came he said by easy stages I studied the fourth reader for ten years he told an interviewer but he was a kidder on and off the stage and many of his boasts of being ignorant could be taken with a grain of salt.

After he left the fourth reader behind him he went through the Willow Hassell school at Neosho Mo and Kemper Military Academy at Booneville and if he did not make a remarkable record for scholarship he did not fail

His mother wanted him to become a Methodist minister but Will had learned to ride a horse and throw a rope on his father's ranch so he went back to the range Then starting with medicine shows and carnivals he went on along the road that finally brought him to the very top of his profession as an actor

A rancher Zach Mulhall organized a wild west show and Will joined it finally reaching New York There is a tradition that he first attracted public notice on a large scale when he lassoed a wild steer that broke loose at Madison Square Garden and was about to dash through the crowd

Certainly shortly after his first appearance at the garden he was on the vaudeville stage Charley Mack of Moran and Mack told of Will's initial efforts in vaudeville He was pretty bad said Mack and grew discouraged He talked it over with Charley

Back to Oklahoma."

Been fired yet?

The manager said I was pretty punk

Yeh you're all of that but has he actually told you that you are fired?

Well no

Don't quit till he tells you maybe you can stick it out to Saturday night That will be three days more pay

Before the week was out Will happened to make a wise crack about something he saw in a newspaper an observation shyly delivered of something that struck his fancy The audience laughed Rogers tried some other joshing remarks and was made

Enters Movies

It was a short step to Hammerstein's Roof at $150 a week and then he spent six years as the star of Ziegfeld's Follies

He ventured into motion pictures but failed to score the success expected The silent screen gave the comedian no chance to convulse his audiences with his homely observations rendered in a drawl that only Rogers knew But when talking pictures appeared Rogers became a boxoffice riot and thereafter the legitimate theater saw little of him

When his friend, Fred Stone, was injured in an airplane accident in 1929 just before he was to open a new play in New York Rogers rushed across the continent took the [illegible]

He continued however to go on lecture tours packing great crowds into theaters auditoriums school houses and churches He raised a small fortune for the drouth sufferers in 1930 and in his quiet way gave thousands of dollars of his private fortune to charity

His wealth was estimated by his friends at several million dollars and he carried life insurance of approximately $1 000 000 He never talked about his money but he was a high salaried actor for years His salary was $25 000 a week when he worked He was paid $2 500 a week for stage appearances and he was understood to have received $15 000 for eight radio broadcasts

He met Betty Blake at a candy pullin in Oologah but it took him a year to win her He was too bashful to propose and finally he worked his way to South America and Australia learning new rope tricks and riding stunts Finally he came back proposed was accepted and they were married November 25 1908 Three children were born to the union Will Jr Mary and Jimmy All three followed the hoof beats of their father and became expert polo players and for a time the Rogers family could put a good team on the field

Had to break it up Will kidded Mary went society on us

He wrote a dozen books and for many years wrote a short daily box for a number of newspapers containing sage comment on the day's happenings

He was seriously mentioned as a candidate for the presidential nomination in 1931 but laughed the suggestion off by saying

A comedian can only last till he takes himself serious or his audiences takes him serious and I don't want either one of those to happen to me until I'm dead (if then) so let's stop all this foolishness right now

Clem Rogers father of Will played a part in adopting the first constitution of the state of Oklahoma and a county was named for him Of this Will said

Heck they had to nobody could pronounce the old name—Cooweescoowee

In Claremore a hotel is named The Will Rogers a six story building which the comedian boasted had more bath rooms than Buckingham Palace

I used to envy General Grant and Jesse James because they had cigars named after them But bucks now I've kinda got it on em

He couldn't be bothered with grammar either in his writings or lectures Once an interviewer suggested he took too many liberties with the laws of syntax

What's that" he asked Sounds like bad news The other explained it meant grammar whereupon the sage laughed and replied

EXTRA SESSION ANTICIPATED TO LEGALIZE LOAN

Davey Likely To Call Lawmakers Next Month After Promise of U S Aid

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O Aug 15—Speaker J Freer Bittinger of the house of representatives said today he anticipated Gov Davey will call a special session of the legislature early in September to adopt a plan for financing the proposed $15 000 000 to $20 000 000 welfare rehabilitation program

Bittinger said the governor had planned to call the special legislative session about Sept 15 primarily for the purpose of financing old age pensions for the remainder of the year In view of the President's approval of the welfare rehabilitation program as a federal public works project he said he anticipated the governor will include the question of financing the state's portion of the program in the call

President Roosevelt has approved Gov Davey's plans for a $15 000 000 to $20 000 000 welfare building program

Sounding Sentiment

Bittinger a patronage dispenser in Democratic state headquarters is sounding the sentiment of legislators for a brief special session

The governor has said he would call a special session about Sept. 1 to provide approximately $5 000 000 for financing old age pensions during the remainder of 1935 and to consider a few other important matters

Enactment of a new biennial appropriation bill probably also would be considered at the special session

Sen William H Herner chairman of the senate finance committee said yesterday that a new appropriation bill has been drafted providing for a reduction of $4 900 000 from the original bill as compared with the governor's veto slash of $8 500 000

Won't Call Election

The governor stood by the announcement he made at the White House yesterday that he would not call an immediate election to choose a successor to the late Charles V Truax representative at large from Ohio

He was even more firm when informed that a suit had been filed in Columbus to force him to call one on the grounds it is mandatory under the Constitution

The cost would be approximately $500 000 and no one I am sure

EUROPEANS RESUME DEBATE ON AFRICA

By The Associated Press

PARIS Aug 15—Programs for war and peace in east Africa were weighed today by Premier Laval of France and Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy as they conferred for an hour in the former's office

Their talk seemed only to deepen the pessimism of officials

Premier Mussolini's right hand man came to the French government head with three arguments

1 Italy must protect Eritrea and Italian Somaliland against a wild and dangerous nation (Ethiopia) by disarming it

2 Italy must expand into colonies as Great Britain and France have done

3 Italy is starved for raw materials and must develop her own supplies

To these arguments Laval had the following answer

1 War would wreck Europe's long-drawn-out efforts for peace and possibly even the League of Nations

2 War would cost men and money and create hatreds although Mussolini could attain his desires gradually and peacefully

3 War would endanger or break the Anglo-Italian control of Europe

Following his meeting with Aloisi Laval conferred with his ministry experts He gave them not only the Italian suggestions but also the British as presented to him yesterday by Anthony Eden British minister for League of Nations affairs

A second conference between Laval and Eden was arranged for the afternoon to clear the ground for the formal opening tomorrow of the conversations among Laval Aloisi and Eden

The British are calling these tri power conversations the last chance" to transform war into peace before the League of Nations council meets Sept. 4 at Geneva.

Following his morning conference Premier Laval said only 'I had a preliminary talk with Baron Aloisi Tomorrow morning

FAMOUS PAIR FLYING OVER ALASKA WHEN SHIP DIVES TO EARTH

Plane Drops 15 Miles from Northernmost Settlement; Bodies Recovered by Signal Corps; Families Notified.

CRASH CAUSE STILL MYSTERY

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE, Aug. 16 — Wiley Post, noted flier, and Will Rogers, actor and famous comedian, were killed today, the U. S. signal corp here said, when their plane crashed while flying from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Point Barrow, Alaska.

The signal corps said the plane carrying the noted couple fell about 15 miles south of Point Barrow, northernmost white settlement in America

Sgt. Stanley R. Morgan, signal corps operator at Point Barrow, advised the Seattle headquarters that he had recovered the bodies from the wreckage and taken them to Point Barrow

The bodies were turned over to Dr. Henry W Griest of the Presbyterian hospital there by Sgt. Morgan

No details of the cause of the accident were received here

Word of the death of the two famous men who were on an aerial vacation in the northland was sent their families in California, Morgan said.

Gen Allison in Washington chief signal officer received the following message from Staff Sergt Morgan at Point Barrow Alaska

Post and Rogers crashed 15 miles south of here five o'clock last night.

Have recovered bodies and placed them in care Dr Greist

Standing by on Anchorage hourly

(Signed) Morgan

It was Col Kumpe in charge of the signal corps activities in Seattle Wash who notified their widows

The plane equipped with pontoons for alighting on water left Fairbanks in the interior of Alaska last night for the 500 mile flight to Barrow

The tundra land south of Barrow is generally devoid of bodies of water large enough for a plane of this type to make a safe landing and while no details of the crash were received it was assumed the plane came down on the frozen ground

Barrow northernmost white settlement in America has a population of several hundred natives and about a dozen whites including the signal corps operator his wife and a child Dr Greist his family and the nurses in the Presbyterian hospital

Washington Gets Word of Tragedy

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON Aug 16—Signal headquarters were notified by the Seattle office today of the finding of the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post where their plane crashed in Alaska

Shocked by the news officials said notice of the tragedy had already been dispatched to the widows of the two by the army

Immediate inquiries were sent to Seattle for all information available In the ordinary course those in charge explained a report of such an incident would be made to Washington at once

It was not understood here just how word of such an accident would reach the mainland so quickly Fliers who had been across the Fairbanks to Point Barrow route said it was so wild that a plane might crash without the information being known for days

Will Rogers whose humor often was employed as a plea for a worthy cause or an unfortunate people wrote his last daily newspaper message, to picture the plight of American drouth stricken pioneers who were making new homes in Alaska Rogers visited the new settlement in Alaska yesterday and in his message for today he pointed to the urgent need for haste in construction of homes for the pioneers to protect them from the fast approaching winter

Rogers daily message has appeared in The Star for several years

There follows his story written for today:

FAIRBANKS Alas, Aug 16— Visited our new emigrants Now this is not time to discuss whether it will succeed or whether it won't whether it's a farming country or whether it is not, and to enumerate the hundreds of mistakes and confusions and rows and arguments and management in the whole thing at home [illegible]

As I see it there is but one problem now that they are here, and that's to get em housed with in six or eight weeks

Things have been a terrible mess They are getting em straightened out but even now not fast enough There is about seven or eight hundred of em About 200 went back also about that many workmen sent from transient camps down home (not CCC) and just lately they are being about 150 Alaskan workmen paid regular wages but it's just a few weeks to snow now and they have to be out of the tents both workmen and settlers

Plenty food and always has been and will be They can always get that in but it's houses they need right now and Col Hunt in charge realizes it You know after all there is a lot of difference in pioneering for gold and poineering for spinach

Will Rogers.

were dispatched immediately to the scene of the crash He said the accident was not on a scheduled airline and the plane was privately towned so his inspectors lacked jurisdiction

We will be as helpful as we can, however he said adding that words cannot express my sorrow at the loss of these two splendid developers of aviation"

Murray Hall, department inspector stationed at Anchorage Alaska, already has gone to the scene.

Ohio Woman Judge Seen as Prospect for Presidency

In 1914 — Judge Allen today

CINCINNATI Aug 15—It is no idle gossip say some political observers that some time in the future a woman will run the United States from the President's chair

The future may be soon It may be scores of years away Only this spring a New York group set up headquarters for a League for a Woman President and Vice President Perhaps that move is the real beginning

Should such a campaign begin and appear at all strong observers believe the women must perforce choose a strong candidate Such a candidate and the New York league has recognized her as being a strong one is Judge Florence E Allen of the Sixth district court of appeals at Cincinnati

Holds Many Honors

Judge Allen whose home is in Cleveland holds the distinction of being the first woman assistant county prosecutor the first woman common pleas judge the first woman supreme court justice and the first woman appointed to the federal bench So — Why not the first woman President?

Judge Allen is 51 years old a Democrat and one of the leaders for suffrage rights years ago She is regarded as a capable official for any high executive office A member of the D A R and descendant of a long line of patriotic Americans the jurist probably stands first on the list for eligible women presidents

Born in Salt Lake City Utah on March 21 1884 Judge Allen received her education at Salt Lake college Western Reserve university University of Chicago and New York university

Suffrage Leader

It was in 1914 that she was admitted to the Ohio bar For five years she practiced law fought for suffrage rights for women in Cleveland and acted as arbitrator in a street railway case

266 DEAD CHINESE OFF ON LONG TRAIL

By International News Service

PHILADELPHIA — Joss sticks burned in the temples of Chinatown as a Norwegian freighter steamed leisurely out of Delaware bay bound for Hongkong

Prayers were for the cargo of the grimy vessel—266 sacred boxes containing the ashes of Philadelphia Chinese who had died since 1909

Reverently the ashes had been kept each in its separate container for some day long chieftans knew there would be funds to send them back to the native land

And now the dream is being realized Soft Oriental hands will take the packages from the firefighters crew in Hongkong and bear each back to the village the Chinese once knew as home

Once these pilgrimages were yearly events but dollars become scarce in Chinatown Associations were formed Bit by bit the money was collected until this year the cherished plans materialized It is believed among Chinese that their soul will never come to rest so long as their mortal remains are away from Chinese soil

CHAPTER 49

Laurie s Message

WHERE was Rex Moore then? Did he bear a charmed life or was he dead?

So the madness worked on that brilliant unbalanced brain Until on the fifth day after Rex Moore had been reported missing Mark Albery was found unconscious on the floor of his study in his Chelsea flat

When he recovered from the stroke his mind was affected and he babbled no sense about having sent Rex Moore to his death in a plane that had been tampered with Nobody believed it of course His doctors sent him into a nursing home for such cases and declared that it was only a temporary breakdown and that he would recover his reason very soon

It was on the following day that Laurie received a wire from a doctor in a remote French village asking her to come at once as her husband was laid up there with a broken ankle

The journey was like a dream to her She flew to Chamonix and from there hired a motor car that took her up into the mountains

And there she found Rex under the shadow of Mount Blanc the snowy giant on whose icy slopes he might so easily have found his grave

He was bruised and shaken by the crash but had no worse injury than the simple fracture of his ankle He had been delirious for three days from the results of exposure in a high valley where a party of guides had found him hence the delay in letting anybody know of his plight

They met in a simple room with varnished wooden walls and scrubbed floor From the balcony one looked on the tall solemn pines and the eternal snows under the blazing sapphire arch of the August sky

Laurie walked slowly to his long chair Then she suddenly knelt down beside it

"Oh Rex—Rex—I ve found you at last"

"I had to send for you Laurie" he answered in a strangely solemn voice "I didn t want to I knew you wouldn t want to come—but you would come because you think you owe me something"

"Oh Rex how did it happen?"

"That s what I felt I must tell you Albery tried to kill me"

"I knew it" she whispered And she told him what had happened at the London station

He tried before Rex went on "That time when you were going up with me You remember I couldn t find my usual mechanic He must have told the strange man to fill my tanks with the new fuel Luckily I had warning from the engine in time and had a parachute"

"And this time?" she asked fearfully

"This time the plane had been tampered with You wouldn t understand It was done by an expert Nobody could have discovered it—until the plane fell to pieces in the air I was lucky again I started off the day before I intended to and the job wasn t quite finished So I escaped with my life I had to tell you Laurie I couldn t bear the thought that you were going to marry a murderer"

"I knew it Rex And I m not going to marry him" She was distracted "And I think he s gone mad They ve put him into a home"

But here there seemed to be no comfort either Rex Moore was still so far away so remote His face was set his eyes had that inhuman snowy look his mouth was angry and stern

"I knew that day at the station that I couldn t marry him" she went on "Not for anything in the world not even for—" She stopped abruptly

"Not even for what Laurie? Why were you going to marry him? For his money for his position—for what else?"

"No—no" She broke down He was all she wanted in the world He was her happiness he was her man Nothing mattered but that he should know the truth

"Rex he forced me to say I would marry him He found out about us I didn t tell him I had to lie to you And he threatened to ruin your career if I didn t marry him He said he could He wouldn t help you any more he wouldn t let anybody else help you He said he had the power And I believed him"

She looked at him in an agony of fear lest he should not believe her

His arms closed around her and held her with a fierce tenderness

"Laurie you did that for me! How could I be so blind? Of course Albery could have ruined me in my job Then you do love me? You love me as much as that"

Their lips met They were one in that tremendous and awesome rapture that is both violent and peace

A long time passed before they spoke again

Then Laurie said

"But your career will be ruined Mr Albery will never forgive us You don t mind now but later on you will be unhappy Can I make up for that?"

"You would make up for anything my sweet my wonderful Laurie" he told her "But I m no longer a penniless beggar thanks to Wanda Steele"

He saw that she did not understand and told her of Wanda s tragic death and of his inheritance She felt a little pang of jealousy that another woman could do so much for him so much more than she ever could even though she was dead But of course she had to be glad

Laurie stayed in the little village until Rex Moore could get about Then they went to Geneva and were married by the British consul

"So now you re really Mrs Rex Moore" he said teasingly the next day as they strolled by the lake "And how does it feel to be married to a poor devil you started out hating?"

"I never hated you" she laughed happily "And it feels too wonderful for words And life is wonderful and you are wonderful And, what s more it s real"

They went back to England to pick up Gladys Rex agreed with Laurie that they could not leave the girl alone

And all the outside world ever knew was that Mrs Rex Moore had gone to Switzerland to be with her famous husband after his accident and the least couple romantically until a few months ... were on their way to California where the studio had recently installed a beautiful estate writes words of praise for soap that gets clothes whiter from washer

Read what Mrs. F. Fralich of 387 Blaine Ave. says:

These are her own words:

"The first time I used Rinso in my washing machine, my eyes opened wide with amazement. Talk about suds! Why, Rinso piled up into the richest, creamiest suds ever And how they loosened the dirt! I was through with the week s wash in half the usual time, and the clothes were at least four shades whiter The colors were much brighter, too That s why I will use no other soap for the week s wash—for dishes and for all my housework."

MRS FRANK FRALICH,
387 Blaine Ave, Marion, Ohio.

You can soak your clothes in Rinso suds for a few minutes, an hour, overnight—or as long as you find convenient Yet no matter how long you soak your clothes you can be sure that everything will be absolutely safe.

Jim Offers Suggestion To Help Force Jack Leslie from His Refuge in Tree

I HATED to take my eyes from Dicky and the [illegible] but [illegible] enough to scribble an answer Mother Graham [illegible] tion But I knew [illegible] there was no way to evade or [illegible] the task and trying no [illegible] of what was going on I wrote rapidly while she read

I can't hear a word Dicky's saying I don't think anybody can except the trooper Look [illegible] obeyed the written admonition her eyes following mine to the officer who turned from Dicky and a step nearer to the tree

Look here my bucko he said belligerently right now rights It'll be just too bad for your pretty complexion and the ears if you try to get down out of that tree while were gone and from here You wouldn't come when we asked you now so wait until we tell you There'll be two good stout fellas underneath this tree all the time were gone so don't try any hing

When I get in touch with my friends— Jack Leslie began—but the trooper did not let him finish

Leave the Tree

And I've heard that one played on several tunes including our own a little while ago he said Save your breath laddie You'll need it later Here Jack

The other trooper came close to the three and I saw Dicky sign to Williams that he also was to stay beneath the tree Then Dicky the first trooper and Jim walked away from the tree and toward the house

Shield yourself with the curtain Mother I said following my own admonition on the other side of the window I was surprised that she obeyed the injunction without question but she patently by this time was under the spell of this melodramatic happening in her own backyard

Trooper Angered

The men stopped almost beneath our window and the voice of the trooper rose querulous exasperated

It sure burns me up that I can't bring that bird down with a bunch of birdshot or a few rocks bounced off his bean

But you can't you know Dicky said reasonably I have a bigger yen to manhandle him than you possibly can have but I know that his spiel just now is correct We can't take the chance of killing or maiming an unarmed man up a tree just because he won't come down We'll have to think of some thing else

Have you a hose here?

Two of em Dicky returned but even putting both of them together they wouldn't be long enough to reach that tree

Too bad the trooper said his voice a paean of regret There's nothing like a spray of ice cold water from a good hose to take the fight out of a bozo

There was another interval of reflective silence and then Jim said half apologetically

I don't suppose the orchard sprayer would do

The trooper only stared at him but Dicky caught the idea directly and clapped Jim enthusiastically on the back

You've got it Good work! But isn't the tank full of spraying stuff? How long will it take to empty and clean it? We can't [illegible] chance [illegible] getting spray [illegible]

Vaccination

In Kensington Gardens, London, many years ago there was erected a statue of a small kindly looking man. It is probable that thousands of children as well as adults pass this statue yearly and are unaware of what they owe the great man thus honored.

I refer to Edward Jenner. In 1796, after much study and observation, Jenner gave to the world the blessing of vaccination. It was one of the greatest of contributions to mankind. Like all new scientific ventures it was received with much speculation and criticism. Even to this day there are many who doubt the value of this life-saving procedure.

Before vaccination came into use about one fourth of the population of the world either died of small pox or were disfigured by the disease. A recent survey shows that there is less smallpox in the United States and Canada than ever before. The disease is on a definite downward trend. It only occurs in sections of the country where vaccination against smallpox is not enforced.

Summer vacation will soon be over and many children will enter school for the first time. In New York state it is compulsory that all children be vaccinated before beginning school.

Vaccination is a simple and safe procedure. Do not be misled by the unscientific and unwarranted statements made by anti vaccinationists or conscientious objectors to this time-proven method of protection against a vile disease.

Bear in mind that if the first vaccination is not successful it should be repeated. After a period of six or seven years a revaccination is advised to insure further immunity. Revaccination is particularly important when smallpox is prevalent in a community or if you plan to travel in a country where the disease may be found.

Again let me warn you against misinformation and misleading statements about smallpox. Smallpox is never so mild that vaccination is unnecessary. The disease can only be prevented by vaccination.

On the Move

President Roosevelt plans to go traveling when congress adjourns. So far only one point of his itinerary is known, San Diego, Calif. where an exposition is in progress.

The President's plans are important because they are the first moves in the new presidential campaign. Henceforth everything Mr Roosevelt says and does will have political significance for some one.

Thus the report he will travel west by going south is interpreted as a sign that Sen Harrison's Mississippi constituents are going to be honored with a visit. Sen Harrison faithful wheelhorse comes up for reelection next year too.

At one time it was believed Mr Roosevelt would return to Washington from San Diego through the northern states showing himself to crowds at intervals across the country and perhaps making a few speeches. After the Rhode Island election however it seemed probable he might return to Washington from San Diego by way of the Panama Canal thereby saving the possibilities of a northern tour for a time when they might be turned to better advantage.

Presumably little boys mothers still want them to grow up to be Presidents. As jobs go the presidency is a fair one—none too much money no chance for advancement but interesting work and lots of authority and prestige. Yet when elections begin to bother politicians again and it's time to be on the move for the sake of the party even a President must wonder if it's worth the effort. Or do political candidates enjoy campaigning?

Fault

A conspicuous detail in the WPA strike in New York City is the conflict of policies between that agency and its half brother the PWA. The latter agency pays prevailing wage rates. WPA on the other hand pays less than prevailing wage rates. Yet both are relief agencies.

Here is a glaring fault. It has been seized upon by organized labor to embarrass the federal government. William Green president of the American Federation of Labor demands a transfer of WPA projects in order to accommodate his organization's viewpoint on relief wages.

The discrepancy is typical of a condition in the administrative branch of government that is causing many observers to believe the most serious threat to good government in the United States is the virtual impossibility of integrating a vast bureaucracy. Americans who cherish dreams of an authoritarian state patterned after one of the several European models forget that with the exception of Russia no centrally administered government abroad attempts to regulate the lives of so many millions of human beings.

The United States does not have a strong tradition of civil service. On the whole its jobholders fall far short of the standard of British jobholders for instance whose public duties are performed with strict regard for intelligence and honesty that can be instilled only by a sense of pride in bureaucracy. The WPA-PWA mixup though not clearly the result of carelessness does reflect, nevertheless the disunity and aimlessness which are causing Americans to wonder whether or not the planners of the new economy are not over estimating their own capacity for administration.

"Anxious Feelings"

It has been overlooked in discussion of the forthcoming Italian campaign against Ethiopia that some of the most nervous spectators are white residents of the dark continent. They are aware of a danger to which Premier Mussolini and his militarists have given little thought.

The Italians are members of the white race. Their invasion of Ethiopia will be considered an affront not only to Ethiopia but to the inhabitants of territory bordering on the kingdom of Emperor Haile Selassie. A race war is a real possibility.

Gen Jan Christian Smuts former prime minister of South Africa, is reported to have said: There is no doubt in my mind that an invasion of Ethiopia by Italy will arouse anxious feelings throughout Africa between blacks and whites. A great conflict in Africa on the borders of British territory must have serious repercussions in British territories such as Sudan and Egypt."

Race feeling is more deeply rooted than national feeling. For centuries white men sometimes stupidly, sometimes intelligently, have been exploiting other races. Africa, which has been divided up by the governments of the white race now is being challenged for its last important independent territory. Italy's invasion of Ethiopia may arouse something more serious than anxious feelings if Africans are made to see it as an issue between races instead of nations.

Worse Than Cold Feet

There will be no taxation for revenue this session of congress nor the next session unless something unexpected turns up. The senate finance committee has made that much plain by suddenly reversing itself on the question of voting the base of the [illegible] tax.

The bill as it now will be retained in accordance with President Roosevelt's recommendations for a [illegible] tax on corporations and individuals. The decision obviously was dictated by that most practical of all practical political reasons—expediency of the next national election. Politicians do not vote taxes that will affect large numbers of voters just before election time.

It would be reassuring to believe the senate finance committee merely got cold feet on the matter of broadening a tax for revenue. Unfortunately there seems no reason to give it credit for that much honesty. A more likely explanation is that the committee never intended to face the problem squarely. It talked about a real tax bill for effect in ending all the [illegible] to [illegible] to the kind of an inequitable bill President Roosevelt has requested when the right moment came.

Of most citizens of the United States do not want congress to increase taxes. But they are increasingly aware of the inevitability of one of two things. Either the government will have to get more revenue or drift into ruinous inflation which is the only alternative to taxation when deficits grow unwieldy. Left to their own devices politicians would rather drift into inflation than stand resolutely for heavy taxation to avoid it. Prodded by public opinion however politicians can be persuaded it is safer to increase taxes. The real question therefore is whether or not taxpayers themselves are willing to stand behind politicians who prefer heavy taxes to ruinous inflation.

Members of the present congress aren't willing to take a chance. They fear the effect of shattering the delusion that a "soak the rich" tax on wealth can make heavier taxes on persons of small means unnecessary.

A Million an Hour

The estimated cost of operating the federal government from July 1 1935 to July 1 1936 is $8,520,000,000. By a coincidence that is a daily cost of $23,342,191 or approximately $1,000,000 an hour. It is a convenient way to comprehend the tremendous spending rate of the period.

The estimated deficit for the current fiscal year is $3,558,000,000 a rate of $1,100,000 a day or about $500,000 an hour. The latest treasury statement shows the estimated rate has been exceeded by daily deficits since July 1. They have been running $11,300,000 every 24 hours. If that rate were maintained the deficit at the end of the year would be $4,121,000,000.

From figures like these one may turn to the most important political story of the day—France's effort to avert inflation of its currency. The French government has been operating with a large deficit. Remembering what happened in the chaotic inflationary years from 1918 to 1926 thoughtful Frenchmen are trying to prevent a repetition of that national tragedy.

A handful of resolute statesmen are trying to reduce expenses. They are being opposed bitterly by many groups which claim injury. Government workers and veterans are proving most troublesome. There have been riots and there will be more. Devaluation isn't easy. Inflation is because it follows the line of least resistance. The United States spending a million dollars an hour on an income of about half that much can afford to pity struggling France. But France having tried the easy way once down deep in its heart is wondering what the United States will be thinking about inflation when it's time to pay the piper for this merry deficit tune.

Neighborhood History

EARLY SETTLER

It is believed that the first white settler in Morrow county was Peter Holt who came to Chester in 1807. Cyrus Benedict settled in [illegible] township in 1809 and the Shaw settlement in Westfield township dates back to 1808.

Cardington then known as Morven township was not settled until 1821 and the first settlement in Gilead township was in 1817.

Asa Mosher built one of the first grist mills and saw mills in this section of the state. The mill was erected in 1819 between Mt Gilead and Cardington before the land was surveyed and opened for settlement.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK Aug 15—Whispers of great bravery on the part of one of the most celebrated of the young men about town Billy Leeds continue to percolate from those outer fringes of the world known as the South Sea Islands. Leeds shaves his head and foots stories of his valor.

As one story goes Leeds on a yachting cruise around the world dropped off at one of the remote islands. It was such an idyllic dot in a faraway world that a stay of two days was extended into several weeks and Leeds became very popular with the Polynesians.

So much so he was made an honorary member of the tribe kept in a special hut hunted fishes and swam with them. He was due only a short while before an annual three day tribal celebration and was invited to remain and be inducted into the ceremonies.

He yielded before he had learned that much of the ceremony led up to a religious frenzy that was climaxed by self torture. Leeds drawn into the mess determined to see it through and did. Among the agonies he endured it is said was the tattooing of a tiger's head on his chest with a shark's tooth.

I had a closeup of New York's notorious vice queen Polly Adler recently in court. She was the personification of the fabled fashion rocking of beauty parlor ministrations lady dressed in the Broadway smart manner and a voice with that thin huskiness that suggests cigarets raw gin and late hours. In the background of every chameleon lady's life is almost invariably the oily figure to whom the woman pays and pays and pays. There's something pathetic the way their dominant affections are always misplaced. Invariably generous their windup follows a set pattern broke friendless a cell. Polly was no exception.

Jack Curley's wrestling matches bring out the most thoroughly masculine crowd the metropolis offers. They come to see a human mat and anything short of violent torture inspires the rousing jazz. In the smoke haze filled with alcoholic fumes many suggest those shadowy brutal figures of the George Bellows fight pictures. Hairy feeling, bullnecked. Between bouts they devour uncooked hamburger sandwiches swig from jugs knocked off bottle tops and constantly poke scrap tobacco into their jaws. Every wrestling match brings out its cry of "Fake!" Put biting ears and fingers until they bleed and butting into a stomach with a flying leap cannot be faked.

Rare humor pops out around the wrestling ringside in unconscious blurts. At a recent bout when two gladiators were locked in a caveman struggle of eye gouging and bone bending they suddenly fell part in exhausted relax. A leather lunged voice shouted "Talcum powder, please. They are chafing."

Behind The News In
Washington And Wall Street

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON Aug 15. A business inflation is coming probably early next year. The sharpest economists here are convinced of it. They are so sure that they speak of it in an offhand manner as a certainty. In fact the administration is making some preparations for it in accordance with the Eccles bill.

It will not be the kind that the congressmen are talking about—not government inflation. That has been going on for four years. It started with the first unbalanced budget.

The new turn will come when the demand for goods exceeds the supply thus causing a precipitous rise in prices. There will be a rush for goods which cannot be stopped by existing cautions in ventories. Prices will be bid up abnormally for whatever stocks exist.

With two and one-half billion dollars of excess reserves in Federal Reserve Banks to finance expansion of activity you can see that the possibilities are quite lively.

Key

A gentle hint of what is coming lies behind the announcement by General Motors that it is spending $50,000,000 for plant expansion. Ford is supposed to be planning a similar expansion.

Unfortunately this is not true of all industry or in fact any other industry at present. If it were it would be the finale of the gloom era because this phase of business activity is the single key to the unemployment problem.

The bulk of the jobless is in durable goods industries. They are the men who make equipment for the manufacturers. They will never get back to work until manufacturers find that demand warrants expansion.

Routine

The automobile makers found it out this summer. Their industry has been the first to recover. The reason is they decided to put out a better product at a cheaper price. The way the public gobbled up that product was beyond expectations. Production continued abnormally high into the summer season. Late orders had to be rushed through for steel. Next year the motor men are not going to be caught short that way. They are expanding.

A somewhat similar situation developed in summer clothing. Manufacturers underestimated demand, failed to manufacture enough goods to meet it. That is why fall goods are being advertised so early this year.

When industry generally encounters this situation forces will be generated to bring on the economic price inflation. The best economists do not believe the time will come this fall but they will bet on it for early next year.

Soft Pedal

The tip is now being spread around that the stock market has overanticipated the business improvement. That plaint appeared in an administration magazine this week. The argument was advanced that fall improvement belongs to a past era when farmers did not receive their income until they harvested their crops. It is an inconsequential half truth. The great bulk of farm policies still moves in the fall although the New Dealers are paying out considerable money ahead of time.

Prospects

Most economic authorities expect a good autumn. The activity in machine tools and residential construction is what is encouraging them.

Residential construction is still low but increasingly active in every section of the country. For instance it was about 24 per cent in June as compared with 22 last year, 87 in 1929 and 126 in 1927 (the peak).

The administration is going to play up this phase of activity shortly. A stimulating hop will be made out of it. That is why Treasury Secretary Morgenthau recently brought down his friend Peter Grim New York real estate

Power

The important hidden question behind the new bank bill is: Who is President Roosevelt going to appoint to the new Federal Reserve board? No one has an inkling. It is a certainty that there will be at least three new members. As there are no restrictions on the President the identity of the men means far more than the new bank bill itself. He could appoint Senator Thomas or J P Morgan and give the bill one meaning or the opposite one.

Stirring

Last Monday the lethargic cabinet textile committee which has been sleeping for weeks was hastily called into session. Next day a second session was held. There is no question that the New Dealers read the Rhode Island election results.

NEW YORK Aug 15—Former President Hoover's challenge to President Roosevelt on the Constitution isn't given much thought by New York interests. It is doubted whether Mr Roosevelt will give it any serious attention.

A leading industrialist told your correspondent that Mr Hoover's remarks will not be taken seriously until he doesn't choose to run. Since Hoover's political position is doubtful it isn't known whether he makes these statements to throw his hat in the ring or whether he is saying things to remain at the top as GOP boss. It is believed he would do more to help the Republican party if he disclosed his political position. Does he want to run again or doesn't he?

Until he tells what it is all about his statements will be given slight consideration here that courtesy given only because he is the ex President.

Grant

Secretary Ickes worked himself into a fine mess. Utility interests are anxious to know what he is going to do about the San Francisco Hetch Hetchy power situation. If Ickes lets the matter slide it will be a plum for the utility boys. They will urge cities to borrow money and build municipal power plants. Private corporations will buy the juice and then resell it to the consumer at a handsome profit. That's what it looks like.

Here's the San Francisco story. About 13 years or more ago the city was given a congressional grant—the Raker act—to own and operate its own water and power project. The city sold $100,000,000 worth of bonds and the plants were constructed. The electric output is not being sold by San Francisco to consumers. It is being sold to the Pacific Gas & Electric company—a private corporation—for the sum of $2,000,000 a year.

Fight

Not so long ago Secretary Ickes had the San Francisco city representatives on the carpet. He wanted to know how come the sale isn't direct to the consumer. He pointed out that the city was directly violating the Raker act. The city's answer was that it was only a temporary sale of the electric power. This didn't go with Ickes because the city has been doing it for almost 10 years.

A citizens group has been formed to urge Ickes to seize the whole Hetch Hetchy project. They want him to establish a TVA in California and so work the property. It is believed by this group that if sale is direct to consumer more than $2,000,000 could be obtained. In that way the $100,000,000 Hetch Hetchy debt of San Francisco would be paid off. They demand action. Thus far Ickes hasn't said a word about it.

The utility boys hope he remains mum. They expect him to be relieved from office before he has anything to say. In fact so it is hinted—the utility boys are finding ways to convince President Roosevelt that Ickes isn't fit for a cabinet position. It means money to utility interests. This is another Utility vs People fight.

Trouble

The department of labor is keeping [illegible] San Francisco sympathizers are organizing for a general strike. They have created a city central committee consisting of two delegates from each union and group including marine workers, scalers, bargemen, teamsters etc. Harry Bridges is king pin. The central committee is empowered to call a general strike of the so-called united front.

Vessels coming in with hot cargo (non-union) are being picketed. Strong arm men are drifting into San Francisco to do picket duty. Barge companies are putting on strike breakers to break the bargemen's strike. New York shipping interests are closely watching the situation. It is feared that labor trouble may spread along the Atlantic coast.

Publicity

The Nazi government is doing all it possibly can to get the American team into the Olympic games. It has gone so far as to have its publicity department mail releases to newspapers. Almost every sports writer in the country has received a letter from one Arthur E Grix, Room 201 665 Fifth avenue New York City. To out of town newspapermen it counts as if a wealthy Fifth avenue resident is pleading for American sportsmanship. But that isn't so.

The offices of the German tourist bureau are located at 665 Fifth avenue. So are the German Railways and other German organizations. All are located in room numbers running from 201 to 210. It goes without saying that 203 is part of that office suite. A telephone call to the German tourist bureau verified the fact that Mr Grix is an employe. That's publicity.

Excuse

Wealthy interests who contribute to the American Olympic fund are against sending a team to Germany. The Anti-Nazi league has started a drive to stop money donations for that purpose. It is believed that American competitors will not be given fair opportunities—regardless of what Nazi officials promise. As it stands very little money is being collected. It is expected—according to those in the know—that the United States team will find a diplomatic excuse when sailing time comes around.

Sidelights

A national trucking organization is in the making via consolidations as a result of the new bus and trucking act. Sharp advance in the price of New York Stock Exchange memberships made the boys very happy. Gave them that much more money credit with which to speculate. Shipping authorities predict an increase of 2½ per cent in gross freight movement for the current three month period—third quarter. Rail security statisticians predict an increase of $10,000,000 in revenues for the Class I carriers—for the last six months of this year.

EARLY COLUMBUS LIGHTING

No provision was made for lighting the streets of the primitive capital of Ohio when Columbus was first established in 1812. Lard lamps were used generally for interior lighting. Street illumination depended on such light coming from windows and doors of cabins and if the wayfarer desired more he need must carry his lantern.

The lantern was usually a crude affair of tin and punched with holes and containing a candle. Even in the state house the best lights were lard lamps and candles. In the closing years of the Thirties in the last century the double reflecting lamp came on the market. Later sperm oil was used to be succeeded in turn by kerosene a fuel avoided at first because crude refining resulted in many explosions. The double reflecting lamp mentioned above was invented by a Springfield O., man

Christians Beat Oakland

WINNERS CLING TO CHAMPIONSHIP HOPE IN CHURCH LEAGUE

Victory Over U B Nine Would Throw Them Into Three-Way Tie

Central Christian jumped into the limelight last night when they defeated Oakland 4 to 1 in a softball contest that kept the Christians in championship running of the No 2 Church League and gave them a chance to tie for the league championship. If they win a postponed game of July 8 with the United Brethren nine the Christians will tie for league honors with the Epworth Bishops and Forest Lawn.

The Christian-Oakland game last night was a tight battle all the way. Both teams got three hits and made two errors but taking advantage of the breaks gave the Christians the winning runs.

Drives McAninch In

The first score of the game came in the second inning when the winners pushed a run across when Roscoe Bank's double drove in McAninch who had walked to open the inning. Two more runs came in in the third when Carle and Pollock walked and McAninch doubled. The final Christian tally came in the fifth when two errors enabled Pollock to cross the plate.

All the while tight defensive play was keeping Oakland off the base paths. The lone run off Bank came in the sixth after the game was safely tucked away for the Christians. Crenasp second man up doubled. Buckley dubbed the ball and it rolled to Bank who overthrew first and Crenasp was safe at third and Buckley at first. On the next play Borne hit to the pitcher. Bank playing it safe allowed Crenasp to score and got Borne at first.

Meet U B Next Week

The Christians will meet U B next week and the game will decide their championship hopes. Should they beat the U B team they will be in a three-way tie for first place and a playoff will be necessary before the little world series can be played. From the past records of the teams it looks as if the Christians should be able to down the U B team with little trouble but how they would fare in a playoff with the Forest Lawn and Bishop teams is beyond speculation.

Other games played last night gave Wesley M E a 10 to 3 win over St Marys and in No 1 league the Epworth Seniors defeated the Epworth No 1 gang 9 to 0.

By winning last night's game Wesley went into a tie with U B for fifth place. Each team has won six and lost seven with another game to play. St Marys was driven further into the cellar and now resting in last place they have a record of three wins and 10 losses.

The Seniors—No 1 game had about the same results in the No 1 league except that there are no more games to play. The Seniors went into a tie for fifth place with the First Reformed nine and the No 1 Epworth tea clinched eighth place for themselves when they lost the shut-out game.

Vestal Seniors hurler held the Epworth No 1 team to a lone hit. The game had promise of being a no-hit no-run game until the last half of the sixth inning when Callahan singled for the only hit off Vestal during the seven inning route. The junior team was retired in one two three order in all but two innings—the fourth when Vestal walked Scheifler and the sixth when Callahan singled.

Softball Fans See Fast Game As Girls' Teams Settle Differences Under Lights

Forgetting all about rouge lipstick and other characteristic worries of the feminine sex two girl softball teams trotted onto the Lincoln park diamond last night under the lights and gave Marion fans a show they will remember for a long time. The final score was the Mansfield Red Birds a 9 to 5 win over the Bluffton Girls.

It didn't make much difference who won however. The score was a minor detail of last night's exhibition. What everybody was interested in was seeing how the girls bitter rivals played the great American game. The answer is that they played it in great American style.

The diamond at the park was marked off with 45 foot baselines and the distance from the pitcher's box to home plate was 37 feet. The change cut 15 feet off the base lines and nearly three feet off the pitching distance. Aside from these changes the girls played the same rules which govern the local softball league.

They could play too. Somewhat weak at the plate the playerettes made up for this deficiency by showing up well in the field and in the pitcher's box. They snagged fly balls made flashy throws across the infield and stole bases in fine style.

Playing before 617 paid admissions and probably well over 1,000 people the girls were out to trim their [illegible] rivals. Mansfield [illegible]. The Red Birds smashed out 10 hits including two doubles and two triples. The winners struck out a dozen opposing batters and made but four errors. [illegible] holt pitching mainstay for Bluffton did great work in striking out eight Mansfield batters and only issuing one pass on balls.

The girls weren't sissies. They never let [illegible] fool them. They went the full nine inning route [illegible] played ball all the way. The baseball managers did [illegible] a little [illegible] at times about what he'd do if he were on the field and the girls seemed to hear him and do the same thing but there's no harm in that. Even the double steal which the manager seemed to foster went off beautifully and although the girls might not have thought it up they certainly carried it out.

The individual star of the game was little Ethel Higgins of Mansfield. The star was injured in an automobile accident while enroute here for the Old Timers game last week and wasn't supposed to be playing but she did. She played first and second she pitched in the tight spots and she smashed out a single double and triple in four times up. Whenever any of the second string hurlers got into some minor difficulty like loading the bases with no one out Miss Ethel was called in to strike out three or four of the Bluffton bats ladies. Running in and out of the pitching position she struck out the Bluffton batters with a fast accurate ball.

To local fans who didn't get out to last night's game just this word: there'll be another all feminine game soon with Mansfield taking on the Lemert Independents. Don't miss it. Each team has won one game of the two they've played together. Lemert won 4 to 3 in ten innings at Mansfield and Mansfield won 9 to 8 at Lemert. The play off will be at Lincoln park soon.

ANSWERS GIVEN ON SOFTBALL RULES

NOTE—In order that softball fans and players can have a clearer understanding of the game a series of rules interpretations are being published. Official rules of softball will be used together with opinions of local umpires. Readers are invited to submit questions for this feature.

Q—Must a runner remain on his base until a fly ball is caught by the fielder?

Ans—A local umpire gives the following ruling on this question: The base runner can advance from the base at his own risk on a batted fly ball as soon as the ball hits the fielder's glove. If the ball is caught and the base runner advances he must be touched with the ball while off his base to be declared out.

Q—Who has the right to the baseline the runner or the fielder?

Ans—If a fielder is in the act of fielding a ball on the baseline the baserunner must go behind the fielder. Otherwise the base runner must keep within three feet of the line between the two bases or be declared out.

CRESTLINE Aug 15 — One of the big events of Crestline Day at Hamilton park Wednesday was the baseball game between the Shelby Settlement team and the local F O E team with the locals winning by a score of 2 to 1.

The game was called in the seventh inning in order that a kittenball game also scheduled could be played.

Both teams scored one run in the fourth inning and with the score tied in the seventh inning Crestline scored the winning run in their half of the seventh when M Eckert drove in the winning run with a single. Stuckman started on the mound for the locals but was replaced by Eckert in the sixth inning. Biglin pitched for Shelby.

The kittenball game between the Shelby Metal Products team and the local U Need A Lunch team was called after four and one half innings on account of darkness with the score tied at two runs each.

TWO-DAY PROGRAM OF BOAT RACES SET

Marion and vicinity will be treated to the most extensive motorboat speed program in at least recent years in a two-day series of races on the Scioto river Saturday and Sunday.

At Prospect Saturday afternoon boat races and a water carnival will be one of the closing features of the one week celebration of the community's centennial anniversary.

The next day the racers will move up the river to Scioto beach at Newmans bridge for another all day session.

Opportunity to participate in two straight days of events is expected to draw racers from several states including many well known in the field of outboard motordom. Several Marion entries are tentatively scheduled.

CARDS, CUBS HAVE LITTLE CHANCE TO TAKE LEAGUE LEAD

Their New York Visits Losing "Crucial" Aspect, Cleveland Wins

BY HUGH S FULLERTON JR, Associated Press Sports Writer

The opening [illegible] of the current intersectional battle in the National League has gone a long way toward taking the crucial aspect out of the New York visits of the challenging St Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs.

Despite the world series atmosphere at the Polo grounds yesterday when 50,000 cash customers saw the Giants and Cardinals divide a bitterly fought double-header the day's results left both the Cards and Cubs with slender prospects of taking the lead in the immediate future.

Cards Need Four Straight

After taking a 6 to 4 setback in the opening game the Cardinals needed four straight victories over the league leaders to take first place by a few percentage points.

They won the second clash 3 to 0 when Bill Hallahan helped himself along toward a shutout victory by smacking the first home run of his major league career.

The Cubs meanwhile took a double drubbing from their former cousins the Dodgers wiped out the oddity of the percentages which had left them behind the Cards on percentages and trailed St Louis by a half game and New York by 3½.

If the Cards should manage to sweep their three remaining games with the Giants and the Cubs should make a similar cleanup against Brooklyn the standing still would look this way:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Cardinals	67	41	620
Giants	68	42	618
Cubs	70	45	600

Dizzy Dean who remained in his hotel with a slight cold is expected to hurl for the Cards today against either Roy Parmelee or Hal Schumacher.

The day's real profits were recorded in that section of the standings where pennant hopes are growing faint if they haven't already been abandoned.

Along with Brooklyn the fourth place Pittsburgh Pirates and the cellar dwelling Boston Braves turned in double victories. The Pucs knocked off the Phillies 8 to 1 and 7 to 4 while Boston went on a swatting spree that netted 27 blows and trimmed Cincinnati 8 to 1 and 11 to 5.

Tigers Win 18 to 2

The Tigers turned their heavy guns on Washington pitching and hammered out an 18 to 2 decision putting together six-run innings against Buck Newsom and Millard Hayes. That again increased their lead to six games. The Indians turned back the Yankees 7 to 6 when Odell Hale's ninth inning double with the corners crammed produced the deciding pair of runs.

The Red Sox consolidated their hold on third place in the standing by beating the White Sox 7 to 1 behind Fritz Ostermueller's seven hit flinging.

The Athletics with Jimmie Foxx swatting two homers to bring his season total to 22 bowled over the Browns 8 to 2.

HAMBLETONIAN WINNER GETS BUT SLIGHT THRILL

Greyhound Hailed as Greatest Trotter Since Days of Peter Manning

By The Associated Press

GOSHEN N Y Aug 15—Winning $18,670 in the light harness horse racing's premier event with a colt hailed as the greatest trotter since Peter Manning would thrill most people but not the veteran Sep Palin who yesterday drove Greyhound to a brilliant heat victory in the Hambletonian.

"Sure I liked to win the money," said the 57 year old Indianapolis horseman after seeing the grey speedster bedded down for the night at Good Time park. "But honestly I got no more kick out of it than winning a $300 race."

Maybe it's because of the habit that Palin has of turning up with two minute performers. He's driven several of them including three great racers Winnipeg, His Majesty and Star Etawah all owned by E J Baker of St Charles Ill as is Greyhound.

Under his guidance Winnipeg hung up a record of 1:5[illegible] a world record for geldings at Toledo in 1928 while His Majesty paced a mile in 1:59½ last year to establish a new mark for a four year old. He drove Star Etawah over a mile in 1:59½ four years ago.

"Greyhound is the greatest trotter I have ever handled," said Palin who has been training horses for 30 years.

"If he remains sound don't be surprised to hear of him lowering Peter Manning's mark when sent along the rail against time with running horses as pace makers. Mr Baker and I fully intend to send him after that mark."

Greyhound traveled the two heats yesterday in 2:02¼ and 2:02¾ for the fastest time ever turned in by a winner of the Hambletonian.

Palin joined up with Baker on of the two heirs to the fortune of John W (Bet a Million) Gates some 10 years ago.

Nearly 40,000 saw the lanky grey come from far back in his heat to win much as he pleased for he was the odds-on choice to whip the eight other starters.

CHAPTER ONE

Rebellion

WHEN Emily Felton was eight years old she ran away from home with the intention of joining a street carnival.

Her flight was not precipitated by neglect; at home she had every care and attention that a child of eight might expect or wish.

But the street carnival, which held forth on a vacant lot belonging to her father, seemed at a glance to be extremely gay and noisy and unrestrained, and Emily's home was none of these things. It was correct and luxurious, with a great deal of emphasis upon the loftier virtues such as Duty to One's Parents, and Responsibility to the Poor.

Fortunately or perhaps unfortunately the owner of the carnival was not an opportunist. Instead of angling for a reward he immediately found out her name and conducted her back to the paternal roof.

Mrs. Felton was incredulous. "Emily, how could you possibly want to leave your beautiful home and go away with those dirty vagabonds?"

In view of his sporting conduct the owner of the carnival considered this a bit thick. He retaliated:

"If you ask me, there's worse things than dirt."

Frances Felton had the grace to look abashed, but his back was up. He continued his assault.

"Not bein' able to laugh, for instance, or to slip the leash occasionally."

Mrs. Felton bridled. She felt that he was presuming upon the obligation she was under. "You see what happens when a child of eight does slip the leash, as you call it."

"Nom. This is what happens when she don't slip it occasionally." He turned to the tearful Emily. "Did you ever steal green apples or run away and go wadin' before the correct day to go wadin'?"

Emily shook her head. Until this recent revolt none of the extra-legal pleasures had seemed even a remote possibility.

"Then," he concluded, "that's why you ran away to join a street carnival. If I was you, ma'am," he suggested to Frances Felton, "I'd give her a little more rope."

Mrs. Felton's pretty chin looked stubborn. "I shall be the judge of that." She produced a bill and handed it to him. "I'm really very grateful to you."

He took the bill and looked at it thoughtfully. "I wouldn't take this," he said at last with a disrespectful twinkle, "if your husband hadn't charged us too much for that lot."

With that one brief bid for freedom Emily's energy was spent.

When Emily was sixteen the question of college arose. Mrs. Felton considered it judicially with her husband.

"Ardmore is really an excellent school."

Mr. Felton considered it too. Besides being president of the soundest bank in northern Alabama, he was big and shrewd and twinkling, but he was no match for his wife.

"Ardmore's no pink tea," he demurred.

"I'd like to go to Bryn Mawr," that she would go where Frances Emily put in, knowing quite well decided to send her.

"But Ardmore has almost as high a standard, and it's near enough for us to see you every week or so," Frances pointed out.

That, Emily thought to herself, was why she had put in for Bryn Mawr. Bryn Mawr was 24 hours from home and she wouldn't have that uncomfortable feeling that her mother was apt to drop in at any time.

Her mother was wonderful and Emily had no intention of doing anything of which she might disapprove, but college was supposed to foster independence, wasn't it?

Frances Felton didn't think so. Her idea of parenthood was careful supervision until the day when she could commit her daughter in a state of pristine innocence to the arms of some fine young man selected by herself. She was plump and pretty and deceptively soft, that type of woman who boasts of not cutting her hair or shortening her skirts because "John won't let me," thereby preserving her own illusion of complete submission.

She expected to rear her daughter in the same illusion, to hand on the torch to a young man of unimpeachable morals. A decade ago there were a great many women of her type. It is probable that there always will be. And Ardmore was chosen as her daughter's Alma Mater.

The next fall Emily entered Ardmore. She was 17 then, slight and dark with a small, exquisitely chiseled face that might one day flame into beauty. Mrs. Felton had selected her wardrobe carefully, excellent garments appropriate for a child of 17.

She herself had been married at 17, but the fact had escaped her mind, and Emily's clothes, although quite as expensive, were not at all those of a bride.

Edwin Barnes came over the night before she left to say goodby. She had played tennis with Edwin on the Felton court, had gone swimming with him in the Felton pool, but he had never so much as held her hand.

Although he would have enjoyed it very much, Edwin had no idea of holding her hand until he was in a position to ask her to marry him. He was [illegible] sible successor to Frances Felton.

He was sober and very reliable. When other young men were drinking heavily and sedulously avoiding the mention of careers, he was quietly finishing up his course at business college and planning to enter his father's wholesale grocery business.

The boys didn't like him a great deal because he cramped their style, not intentionally, but thoroughly. He tried to laugh at their jokes, but it wasn't until everyone else had laughed that he realized they were jokes, and that made him difficult.

With Emily he felt thoroughly at ease, probably because Emily rarely laughed either. She had tried it once or twice with Edwin, but the result was discouraging and she had relapsed at last into gravity.

They sat in a swing on the terrace chaperoned by a flood of golden light from the living room window. There was a moon shining and the air was heavy with the sweetness of a nearby rose garden, but Edwin manfully kept his head and talked about college.

"I understand that Ardmore has the finest swimming pool in the south."

"Yes," said Emily without enthusiasm. She was watching Edwin's face in the luminous darkness and realizing for the first time that it had a certain delicate beauty. She wished with a sudden thrill of horror at her own depravity that he would quit talking about swimming pools and take her in his arms. She had never kissed anyone but her own family, but this sense of closing a door on childhood was doing something to her.

Edwin was watching the small quiet face near his own and longing to do the same thing, but the whole sale grocery business had been very uncertain of late and the knowledge restrained him.

"Are you going to write to me sometimes?" he asked instead, with a wistfulness that might have betrayed a great deal to one who knew the signs.

Because she sensed that Edwin would never so far forget himself as to kiss a girl until he had proposed to her, and because tonight she was weary of caution, Emily's voice was sharp.

"What's the use? I'll probably be coming home every week end."

He didn't insist. That was the worst of Edwin, he never insisted. He put forth a request or a suggestion as tentatively as an insect puts forth its feelers and at the first sign of opposition snatched it quickly back. Emily wondered idly about the grocery business; surely it required more aggressiveness than that.

"And can I see you when you're at home?"

"Of course. You always have."

Edwin was discouraged. He rose slowly from the swing. "Well, you'll want to get an early start tomorrow, so I'd better be going."

At the door of his car he turned and took her hand. "I—hope you enjoy it a lot," he said unsteadily.

She saw in his eyes that he wanted to kiss her, and her small face was suddenly alive and vivid. "I'll try."

He leaned swiftly towards her and Emily's lashes drooped over shining eyes. Then as swiftly he caught himself and stopped. He pressed her hand hard.

"Goodby," he muttered, and got quickly into the car.

In her own room Emily rested her forehead against the delicately carved bedpost and closed her eyes. "He's like everything else I've ever known," she whispered wearily. "Careful and safe." Her mouth hardened suddenly. "I wonder if all my life is going to be that way."

Emily ran away to join a street carnival

CHAPTER TWO

Ardmore

ARDMORE is not far from Eastern Alabama. It is near Birmingham, about two hours' drive, Emily noted from her own front too. Although she had seen the college before, she was conscious of a vague disappointment as the car bore her and her mother towards Main Building.

Esthetically the Ardmore of a decade ago was not very satisfying. It was too prone to ignore the amenities of living for the rigors of learning. There was no architectural unity in the buildings, and exchange professors from Trinity or Edinburgh found themselves to their surprise quartered in rococo relics of the nineties which the campus, like an enormous amoeba, had absorbed as it grew.

Modernism, except in such courses as were necessary to maintain the school's standing, had not been allowed to rear its head, and its Bible professors taught a doctrine of fire and brimstone while its professors of science conducted discreet experiments with the Mendelian laws of heredity and expounded the Darwinian theory of natural selection.

Smoking went hand in hand with cheating as a capital offense, and automobiles were instruments of the Devil for the furtherance of his private ends.

Before committing her child to the college's care, Frances Felton had a long interview with the Dean, which strengthened her own conviction of the rightness of her choice.

Dr. Markham was a fragile lady of the post-Victorian era, had grown up with the school, and who managed through the sheer force of her convictions and her unimpeachable gentility to control five hundred girls without raising her voice.

Freshmen trembled in her presence and were uncomfortably aware of their hands and feet; graduates saw her devotion to her school and her students and paid her unstinted tribute.

She and Frances liked and respected each other immediately. They saw eye to eye in the matter of training young girls for life. Over a cup of tea in the Dean's immaculate parlor they discussed and settled Emily's future.

"I can't tell you," Frances assured her warmly, "what a comfort it is to know that Emily is in your care."

Dr. Markham smiled. "You are very kind. It is a great comfort to us to have girls like your daughter at the school. They make it what it is."

Frances shook her head. "Not entirely. No matter how fine a girl is, she needs to be directed."

Dr. Markham sipped her scented tea delicately.

"That is true. Our secret lies in directing rather than ruling. We give our girls more liberty than any other school in the South on the assumption that they are capable of appreciating it. They know our high ideals and strive to live up to them. It has been very successful."

Frances glanced at her watch and extended a plump hand. "I mustn't monopolize your time. You have been more than kind."

It would be inaccurate to say that Dr. Markham shook hands. Rather she allowed her hand to be taken. "I hope you will come and see us often. We like to feel that parents are interested in our efforts."

"Thank you, I shall," Frances assured her.

She went then to the Freshman Dormitory, an outmoded red brick building with rooms large enough to house a modern efficiency apartment, and climbed two flights of stairs to her daughter's room.

Emily was arranging books and a picture. Her face was flushed and dirty and her eyes were shining. This she had begun to realize was more nearly freedom than anything she had ever known.

"Are you staying for supper?" she asked gaily.

Frances shook her head. "No. I told William to come for me at five and I fancy he's waiting now. You know I never like to leave your father alone for meals."

Jeffrey Felton was always "your father" when Frances spoke of him to Emily. It was as if she disclaimed any relationship with him outside the paternity of her daughter.

"Well, kiss him for me and tell him I'm expecting a visit as soon as he can get away. And I mean, not William."

Frances looked at her thoughtfully. In her day a girl was pale and tearful over the idea of leaving her home. "You will remember, I hope, dear, that we're expecting a good deal of you."

The brightness faded. "Of course, Mother."

"I'm sure you will." Frances kissed her with real tenderness and went to her waiting car.

Emily's roommate, whose name was Judith Carroll, arrived later in the evening. It was quite typical of Judith, Emily learned afterwards, to arrive everywhere a little later than everyone else. Her tardiness wasn't intentional. It was simply [illegible] from an inward [illegible] part of other [illegible] leave the place she [illegible] to be.

She was tall and slender with cloudy dark hair [illegible] blue eyes that hid a knowledge of people and things [illegible] individuals [illegible] curiosity or the [illegible] to acquire. She flung her [illegible] bed her coat on the [illegible] in the room at a glance and held out both hands.

[illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] "Judith," [illegible] "[illegible] do you [illegible]" [illegible] on the unmade bed. "Oh, [illegible] I always do. It's a family failing."

[illegible] Emily came to know [illegible] Judith's family [illegible] fashioned from the same [illegible] "Let me [illegible] if there's anything I can do to help you unpack," she asked a little shyly.

Judith ran a hand through the [illegible] clouds [illegible] retched. "Thanks, no [illegible] nothing to unpack. I [illegible] here in time to [illegible] ink from the maelstrom [illegible] low, but David made me [illegible] as usual. I'll have to sleep on the mattress, but I've [illegible] worse before this."

Emily familiarizes herself with an entirely new type of person tomorrow.

The Stars Say--

For Thursday, Aug. 15

A DELIGHTFUL, prosperous and altogether happy day is presaged by the dominant planetary forces. With Jupiter and Venus holding sway there is likely to be much doing in regard to the social, domestic and affectional side of life. This is amplified and uplifted by a tendency to the mystical, altruistic and idealistic. High aspirations are stimulated despite petty irritabilities.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a prosperous, happy and inwardly gratifying year, with the energies turned to social, domestic, romantic and probably altruistic engagements. There is some prospect of travel by water.

A child born on this day should have a highly idealistic and mystical nature, inspired by love and brotherhood in all its manifestations. Its talents would be inspired and cultivated by such aspirations.

Old Spirit Remains

Spirited arguments that frequently interrupted games between Marion and Prospect teams 25 and 30 years ago were not lacking in yesterday's game. In what many of the spectators and players believe was a "frame up" suggested by the Curtis brothers to start an argument, Robert Gamble, Marion player, was called out at second base. Billy Fetter, acting as manager for the Marion team, promptly protested and all the players and many of the spectators rushed out on the diamond to join the argument. George Sheppard and Paul Hoover, both of Prospect, serving as umpires, insisted their decision was right and marched Gamble off the diamond in a burlesque of a scene that was common to games played by Marion and Prospect teams a quarter of a century ago.

Another interruption in the game came when an old baseball uniform worn by Harry Beavers ripped, sending the veteran player home to don overalls so he could finish the game.

SENATE OKAYED TAX BILL IN CONFERENCE

other major tax measure through the upper body in all senate history.

Futility of resistance to the rates proposed by the senate finance committee was evidenced early in the day in crushing defeat of proffered amendments dealing with rates. Senators roamed around the chamber in confusion, an adjournment gleam in their eyes. And all factions cooperated enthusiastically to pass the bill before Sen. Long, Democrat of Louisiana, could get back to town and launch the big fight he had announced to write his "share our wealth" plan into the tax bill.

Long was in New York today announcing his probable presidential candidacy once more.

The Borah amendment is expected to be killed in conference with the house, since the house tax measure contained no such provision.

A roll call on the Borah amendment showed 20 Democrats, 18 Republicans, one Progressive and one Farmer-Laborite voting for it. Thirty-eight Democrats and one Republican voted against it on final vote.

On final passage of the bill, the roll call showed 48 Democrats, seven Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite and one Progressive recorded for it, and 10 Democrats and 12 Republicans against.

Those who voted against the bill were:

Democrats—Adams, Burke, Byrd, Copeland, Gerry, Glass, Lonergan, McCarran, Moore, Tydings.

Republicans — Austin, Barbour, Carey, Hale, McNary, Metcalf, Schall, Steiwer, Townsend, Vandenberg, White, Gibson.

Senator Bulkley, Democrat of Cleveland, voted for the Borah amendment and for the bill. Ohio's other Democratic senator, Donahey, was absent and unrecorded.

Two amendments sponsored by Sen. LaFollette, Progressive of Wisconsin, were smashingly defeated prior to passage of the bill.

One would have created a new surtax bracket between the $3,000 and $4,000 net income levels, and would have raised progressively the rates on all brackets to a maximum of 75 per cent, on all net income in excess of $5,000,000. This was defeated, 67 to 19.

The other, offered following defeat on the first, would have started to increase surtax rates on net income over $6,000 whereas the finance committee proposed starting the new increases at incomes in excess of $1,000,000. This LaFollette amendment was licked, 56 to 22. The house bill would start the increases at income in excess of $50,000.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY LOYAL WORKERS

Mrs. Clyda Underwood was elected president of the Loyal Workers class of the First United Brethren church at a picnic meeting last night at McKinley park. Other officers are Mrs. C. E. Bonecuter, first vice president; Mrs. S. A. Hollenbach, second vice president; Mrs. Clara Hildreth, secretary; Mrs. Walter Holderness, assistant; Mrs. Harry Fowler, treasurer; Mrs. Carl V. Roop, pianist; Mrs. Florence Uline, chorister; Miss Katie Cromer, teacher.

The families were guests at the picnic supper. The next meeting will be held Sept. 18.

DRUGS AND SUNDRIES

WOMEN CAN OBTAIN A BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION
This can be done in a comparatively short time so says C. Lower, Chemist at Lower's Pharmacy. To try to create complexions by powders, rouges and beauty creams is merely a delusion and a snare—sooner or later the skin will show an artificial glare. The women that would spend the same money on creating a good healthy complexion by keeping the body healthy would add years to holding her youthful beauty. GALL, LIVER and BILE ailments destroy complexion rapidly. It has been observed that people who have used Z. Z. Z. GALL tablets take on a wonderful complexion in a remarkable short time. This again proves that limpid bile means much to a woman to regain and hold her complexion. Z. Z. Z. GALL tablets are sold by Lower's Pharmacy.
